REDUCE COSTS OF GOVERNMENT, SCHWAB'S PLEA

Budget Must Be Balanced to Protect Credit, Steel Chief Says

STILL IS OPTIMISTIC

Calls Confidence "Life-blood of Trade"—Urges Its Restoration

New York — (AP) — Charles M. Schwab today reaffirmed his optimism for the future but asserted that costs of government must be reduced and existing credit jams broken before business could revive.

In his semi-annual presidential address to the American Iron and Steel Institute Mr. Schwab, chairman of Bethlehem Steel corporation, said "a most important prerequisite for the restoration of public confidence was 'the demonstration by federal and local governments that they can and will live within their incomes under stress of necessity.'"

"The federal budget must be balanced in order to protect our national credit," he said, "and in view of the vastly depleted ability of the public to pay, it must be balanced chiefly through the measure of reduced expenditures."

The steel industry, he declared, has put its own house in order and the federal reserve system is doing its part.

But above all, the federal government which is the heart of our national structure, must balance its budget and restore confidence there. From there, confidence, which is the life-blood of trade, will be transfused into our retailers of finance—the banks—to re-establish that faith which is so necessary to the flow of credit. God speed the day!

"I am still an optimist, even amid present conditions. I continue to have hope and belief in the future because I have lived so long and have seen our people work their way out of so many trying situations. In this country we have great resources and a great heritage. We are all of pioneer blood, whether recently or generations back. The pioneer spirit is daring, devout and industrious. Such a combination cannot permanently be destroyed. Not fearing the future, ready to face every issue, and determined to fight for what we believe, we are on the path toward equilibrium."

Small Steel Output

Unless there is improvement, a steel output of only 16 to 17 million tons, the smallest since 1928, is indicated for the industry this year. Mr. Schwab pointed out. The five leading companies of local steel production this year failed to earn interest, depreciation and other charges by $25,000,000, and "losses at this rate compel the most drastic readjustments in the relation of costs to income."

"We as taxpayers cannot afford to carry in our costs," he continued. "The burden of taxation that we could bear in the year 1925 to 1929. The burden of local taxes in the present conditions of business becomes self-evident when we realize that in some of the communities where our steel plants are located the local taxes total as high as 10 per cent of our cost of production."

"I appreciate the difficulties which beset our public officials. We, as taxpayers, have demanded these huge increases in budgets which, in the main, reflect a higher standard of living."

"The inescapable fact remains, nevertheless, that in the present emergency all governmental expenditures must be adjusted to the ability of the public to pay. Moreover, there is a considerable range of possible economies which can be put into effect, such as the elimination of unnecessary bureaus, greater efficiency in personnel, more efficient analysis of costs. The revenue for our more prosperous times no longer exists, and government must cut according to its cloth."

Mr. Schwab said steel employers hoped the wage reductions would be compensated for by improved employment.

Need Descent Standard

"In any labor policy the human considerations are basic. Industry was made for man, not man for industry. In the long run our present form of economic structure must provide employment, happiness and a recent standard of living for the population, or it will not survive."

The best the steel industry has been able to do so far is "slacken the process of disintegration."

"Even with firmer prices and these drastic cuts in our costs, we cannot continue indefinitely unless credit is put to work and the volume of business is thereby increased," Mr. Schwab asserted.

Steel producers, he said, must look to Washington for aid in meeting competition from foreign "dumping."

FARM BOARD PROBE

Washington — (AP) — Chairman McNary of the senate agriculture committee today told newspapermen that as soon as the present crash of legislation is out of the way, the group would open its investigation of the board, its affiliates and the grain exchanges.

TWO KILLED AS TRAIN HITS BUS

Mother and Child Dead, Another Victim Near Death in Madison Hospital

Madison — (AP) — A young mother and her 3-year-old daughter were killed and a 2-year-old girl suffered injuries which physicians fear may be mortal when a Northwestern railroad train yesterday smashed into a school bus in the village of Brooklyn, near here.

The dead are Mrs. James Weidel, 23, and her daughter, Olga Mae, 3. Mrs. Weidel's 2-year-old daughter, Mrs. Weidel's niece, is in critical condition in the Madison general hospital. Also in the hospital, less seriously hurt, are James Weidel, driver of the school bus, and his son, William, 2.

Weidel drives a 10-passenger bus by which children are transported to school. Yesterday he had taken the children to their homes, and in the village, picked up his wife, children and niece. The crash occurred as he was driving to his home—over a crossing which is not on the route taken daily by children. The machine was carried 100 feet down the tracks by a Chicago-bound train which does not stop in Brooklyn.

PHONE COMPANY QUIZ DRAWS NEAR CLOSE

Madison — (AP) — Testimony by economists from various parts of the country on the effect of economic conditions on business was virtually completed today before the Public Service commission.

Prof. S. H. Nerlove of the department of business economics at the University of Chicago, gave technical testimony today on corporate profits and their relation to capital investment. He was also subjected to cross-examination.

Prof. Nerlove was one of a number of economists who have testified for the commission in its investigation of the Wisconsin Telephone company. Counsel for the company today made a motion to strike out the testimony of the economists on the ground that it is irrelevant and immaterial to the issues of the case.

TWO $350 FINES FOR BREAKING GAME LAWS

Eau Claire — (AP) — Louis Dahl of Donald, Wis., and Carl Leher and E. C. Cote of Chippewa Falls, were fined $350 each by Judge James Wickham in circuit court here yesterday upon conviction of charges of violating the state game laws.

Their trial here was an appeal from a conviction in Rusko. They were arrested last Oct. 23 in an automobile containing the carcasses of four deer, six grouse and several raccoons.

DO-X HOPS OFF FROM NEW YORK ON RETURN TRIP

Giant Airliner Flies to Harbor Grace Enroute to Germany

Halifax, N. S. — (AP) — The German airplane DO-X returning to Europe, was reported by the steamer Savallier as passing Cape Canso, N. B., at 11:30 a. m. eastern standard time today. She was flying low through clear weather toward her first scheduled stop at Harbor Grace, N. F.

Halifax, N. S. — (AP) — The giant German airliner DO-X arrived over Halifax, N. S., at 10:15 a. m. eastern standard time today, on a flight from New York.

New York — (AP) — The German airliner DO-X, its great motors roaring in the silence of Long Island Sound, took off at 4:05 (E. S. T.) this morning for Harbor Grace, N. F., on the first lap of its return trip to Germany.

The take-off was made from a point 12 miles east of Manhasset bay.

The rear of the great seaplane's powerful motors was heard by newspapermen crouching about the bay in fast launches endeavoring to locate it in the darkness.

It had been lost to them since it taxied away from North beach last night. First indications of its new position were contained in radio dispatches requesting weather reports.

Later it was learned that the ship had not left the water enroute to its new anchorage. It had taxied the first mile or so and then was towed by boat.

Captain Frederick Christianson, the DO-X's commander did not announce his trip to the open water where he had apparently decided a safer take-off could be effected.

A radio message from the German air cruiser at 5:30 (E. S. T.) said that weather conditions were "favorable" and quoted the log as recording the take-off from "Port Washington," the Radio Marine office reported.

The airliner was heavily loaded yesterday for its long flight. A full supply of fuel and provisions was placed aboard, and Captain Christianson, after taking his craft to a point off the J. P. Morgan estate on Long Island, waited for the dawn. There was a crew of 14 aboard.

The DO-X had been thoroughly overhauled since its arrival in New York last Aug. 27. Plans are to remain in Newfoundland until favorable weather reports for her flight over the Atlantic to the Azores are received.

She is bound for Lake Constance, Switzerland, her home port, which she left in November, 1930.

VERMONT PARTIES HIT AT PROHIBITION LAW

Montpelier, Vt. — (AP) — Unpledged slates of delegates, partial to Roosevelt on the one hand and President Hoover on the other, have been chosen by the Democrats and Republicans of Vermont to attend their parties' national conventions.

While the Republicans adopted a resolution calling for a submission of prohibition to a referendum within the next year, the Democrats went further and recorded themselves as favoring repeal of the eighteenth amendment and an immediate modification of the Volstead act to legalize the sale of light wines and beer.

DR. MAGEE ELECTED METHODIST BISHOP

Atlantic City, N. J. — (AP) — Dr. Junius Ralph Magee, district superintendent of the Seattle, Wash., area, was elected bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church today by the general conference on the seveneenth ballot.

Magee received 561 votes, 55 more than the two-thirds majority necessary for election.

As soon as his election was announced he was escorted to the platform where the board of bishops' st. Bishop Magee probably will be formally consecrated on Sunday.

PRIMARY ELECTIONS AT COLLEGE FRIDAY

Primary elections for student government officers will be held tomorrow at Lawrence college during regular convocation at chapel. The most beautiful ood also will be selected by the Queen of the May festival Saturday. The chief interest in the primary is centered around the race between Roy Merston, Jr., Appleton, and Marshall Wiley, Chippewa Falls, for president of the all-college club, the highest office in the student government. Members of the student senate and representatives to the forensics board also will be chosen at this time.

1,800 Women Jam Into Lawrence Chapel For Third Cooking Class

Balcony window sills, aisle stairs and even the outside steps in the Lawrence chapel vestibule served as treasured seats in the third session of the eleventh annual Post-Crescent Cooking school Wednesday, and when every available niche and corner was gone, nearly 1800 women had to stand at the back of the auditorium.

Although chairs were brought in by the ushers during the intermission of the school, and the double row of extra chairs in front of the stage.

As a reward for having the largest family among all the 1,800 women attending yesterday's cooking school, Mrs. G. E. Kronschabel, 824 E. Franklin, mother of 13 living children, was presented with a huge basket of groceries by Fannie Hamilton.

stage was filled, many women had to stand throughout the lecture and several left the school because there was no room left. Women in the back took turns sitting on the straight backed-chairs, "swapping" recipes that each were able to write down, a line of women formed along the side of the balcony where they stood in order to see the model kitchen on the stage.

Leads All Schools

The Appleton Post-Crescent cooking school definitely stepped ahead of all previous cooking schools at yesterday's session when more than 1,800 women crowded into the spacious auditorium. More than 100 women straggled into the chapel after the lecture had begun, to find that window sills were filled with eager women, listening attentively to every word Miss Hamilton said.

Artists appearing in the chapel have never received more enthusiastic welcome in Appleton than Miss Hamilton when she came out upon the stage after the introduction by Miss Florence Day, librarian and president of the Appleton chapter of American Association of University Women. WOMAN FLIER HOPS ON FIRST LEG OF LONE OCEAN JAUNT

Hasbrouck Heights, N. J. — (AP) — Amelia Earhart Putnam took off from Teterboro airport today for Harbor Grace, N. F., on the first leg of what she hopes will be the first solo flight by a woman across the Atlantic. The takeoff was at 2:15 p. m., eastern standard time.

Tomorrow night, weather permitting, she plans to soar over the ocean to follow alone the path of the naval officer's mother in Winchester, Ky.

"We'll probably go down home tomorrow," the lieutenant said.

Asked by newspapermen if he would seek a pardon from Gov. La Follette, restoring his civil rights in his native state, Lieut. Massie said: "I'm not asking anything from anybody—but I sure do hope he says me one."

Mrs. Thelma Massie, whose assault was avenged by her husband's murder of one of the five alleged attackers, said she was happy to be back home; that she was anxious to see "Tommy's" mother again.

Lieut. Massie has a 30-day leave of absence. After that he will return to the San Diego Naval base, but indicated he expected to be transferred soon to the Atlantic coast, probably to New London, Conn.

Like Mrs. Massie's mother, Mrs. Grace Forcissie, the couple gave Clarence Darrows, veteran Chicago defender, all the credit for the liberation.

ACTION DEFERRED ON BONUS RESOLUTION

Washington — (AP) — The house rules committee today deferred until Monday action on the Patman resolution calling for full payment of the soldiers' bonus.

Representative Patman (D., Tex.), sponsor of the full cash payment of the adjusted service certificates by the issuance of new money, said he would file a petition to force it out of the rules committee if action was not forthcoming soon.

Patman's bill was reported unfavorably by the wars and means committee and members of the rules committee have said there was no precedent for it to grant a place on the legislative calendar to a measure which had the disapproval of a committee.

Garner Offers Proposals To Ease Economic Strain

Washington — (AP) — Speaker Garner today in a formal statement made three suggestions to relieve the economic situation in the country and said he hoped the administration would cooperate with congress in enacting them into legislation.

His program called for the issuance of one billion dollars in bonds for a government building program, broadening the base of the Reconstruction Finance corporation to add to its resources the present $100,000,000 capital and passage of the Huddleston bill to place $100,000,000 in the hands of President Hoover to be used in relieving "extremes suffering in any section of the country."

Garner said he was "unshakably opposed to the debt, but it must be apparent that before congress adjourns some real effort must be made toward taking care of the unemployment situation as well as the people who are in physical distress."

OVER 4 MILLION MADE BY GROUP IN SINGLE WEEK

Raskob and Other Prominent Persons Participated in Radio Pool

Washington — (AP) — How John J. Raskob and other prominent persons profited $4,324,075 from a week's pool operations on new Radio stock in March, 1929, was related today in the senate's investigation of the stock market.

Those listed by William A. Gray, counsel for the inquiry, as having culled handsome returns along with the chairman of the Democratic national committee, included:

Percy A. Rockefeller, Charles M. Schwab, Walter P. Chrysler, Mrs. M. J. Meehan, H. E. Swope, Mrs. David Sarnoff, W. C. Durant, T. F. Mara, J. A. Stillman, Fred J. Fisher, L. P. Fisher, William A. Fisher, A. J. Fisher, E. F. Fisher and Charles T. Fisher.

Testimony also was introduced that persons who put up no money for the pool shared in the returns, among them J. P. Tamm, secretary to the late President Wilson, and Eddie Dowling, the actor.

Senator Glass, (D., Va.), called it the same "as gambling at a card table with a card up the sleeve."

The pool operated through two firms, Meehan and Co., W. E. Hutton and Block Maloney and Co.

Closed Out in Week

In the seven days, Gray said, 1,433,099 shares were bought for $141,424,325. He described the Radio stock movement as having gone from 77 1/2 on March 5 to a high of 109 1/2 on March 16. The pool began March 12 and closed out between March 18 and 20.

Raskob was listed as having put up $1,000,000 and profited $221,000, while Schwab invested $200,000 and made $53,000.

William A. Gray, committee counsel, announced before the hearings that persons who put up no money for the pool shared in the returns, among them J. P. Tamm, secretary to the late President Wilson, and Eddie Dowling, the actor.

Other cases which will be developed, Gray said, involve the Goldman Sachs Trading corporation, Indian Motorcycle and General Foods.

McConnochie and O'Brien are partners of M. J. Meehan, specialists in Radio, whose wife participated in another pool previously described to the committee.

Relating the movement in the stock in response to inquiry by Senator Watson, (R., Ind.), Gray gave the following dates and prices:

March 5, 77 1/2; 6, 74; 7, 81 1/2; 8, 82; 9, 92 1/2; 10, 94 1/2; 11, 94 1/2; 12, 94 1/2; 13, 94 1/2; 14, 100 1/2; 15, 107 1/2; 16, 109 1/2; 17, 101 1/2; 18, 94 1/2; 19, 94 1/2; 20, 94 1/2.

In the spring of 1929, Gray was a member of the brokerage firm of W. E. Hutton. He named his wife as a participant in the new Radio pool of 1929.

He managed the pool, with help from Franklin Ellsworth.

Gray placed in the record circular sent out by Meehan and company Mar. 7, 1929, announcing formation of the syndicate.

This said the pool would not exceed 1,000,000 shares on the long or short side of the market.

TWO YOUTHS ARRESTED IN MADISON SLAYING

Chicago — (AP) — Two young Chicagoans, Henry Becker and Bernard Baty, were arrested for questioning concerning the slaying of Policeman Edward Rippon of Madison, Wis.

They were arrested in their homes by Prosecuting Attorney Carl Christensen and Sheriff Fred Finn of Madison, and Sergeant William Shea of the Chicago Detective bureau.

Officer Rippon was found shot and beaten to death on the outskirts of Madison Monday night. An automobile, stolen in Chicago and believed to have been used by the slayers, was found abandoned in Norfork, Ill. A blood-clotted paper matted with hair the same shade as Rippon's was found in the car.

It was believed Rippon was killed when he attempted to make arrests.

Garner said it was evident that the situation could not be remedied by international negotiations to remove barriers and restrictions upon international commerce, "since the present administration will not permit legislation of this nature."

"Therefore we must consider what, if anything, can be done to improve the situation by direct action of the government."

HUNT TEACHER IN ATTEMPT TO TRACE RANSOM

Telephone Call to Brooklyn Woman Alleged to Have Come from "Jafsie"

Schwarzkopf Finds Nothing to Link Curtis With Ransom Demands

BULLETIN

New York — (AP) — Mrs. Mary G. Ford, Brooklyn school teacher, for whom Assistant District Attorney Jacobs of Kings-co, Brooklyn, said he was looking in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping case, was in his office late this afternoon, being questioned.

Brooklyn — (AP) — Assistant District Attorney Ralph K. Jacobs, of Kings-co, Brooklyn, announced today he had sent out two detectives to find Mrs. Mary G. Ford, Brooklyn school teacher, and "bring her in for questioning in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping and ransom payment."

Mrs. Ford, Jacobs said, was absent today from Public School 67, Brooklyn, where she teaches. He said he told the detectives to proceed to 33 Riverside drive, Manhattan, where he said she rented an apartment two weeks ago.

Jacobs said he was informed Mrs. Ford paid $100 for a month's rent in advance, with $20, $10 and $5 bills.

He sent for her he said, on information given him by the public school authorities and after questioning the principal of the school where she teaches.

Jacobs said he questioned Fredrick Schoedel, principal of the school, this morning and that Schoedel made the following statement:

"Several weeks ago a telephone call for Mrs. Ford came to the school. A man asked for her. We said we couldn't call her to the telephone during school hours, whereupon the man said 'This is Jafsie of the Lindbergh case.'"

"Our clerk said he didn't believe him. The man insisted, saying 'This is Dr. Condon. I'd like to speak to Mr. Ford.'"

"We broke the rules and called her to the phone. We heard her speak of a meeting. When she hung up, she turned around and said:

"That was my sister's doctor. He wants to make an appointment with me."

Couldn't Reach Condon

"I called Dr. Condon on the telephone, but I was unable to reach him. We then reported the matter to Superintendent of Schools O'Shea, someone in Mr. O'Shea's office wrote a letter about it to Police Commissioner Mulrooney."

Jacobs said he had reported the matter to District Attorney McLaughlin of the Bronx, and that McLaughlin told he would ask Condon about Mrs. Ford when Condon appears at his office to go before the grand jury tomorrow.

Jacobs said Mrs. Ford on Tuesday was held in $3,000 bail on charge of having attempted to swindle Mrs. Ann Laughlin of Richmond Hill, out of $1,500. School officials investigated this matter, he said, started an investigation of Mrs. Ford along other lines.

"It was found," he said, "that two weeks ago she had announced she was ready to settle a $40,000 action that was pending against her. They said they checked on her antecedents from school and found she had been away from Feb. 27 through March 10."

MINNESOTA NOT AS GLOOMY AS OTHER STATES

Northwest Decidedly More Cheerful Than Other Sections of U. S.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1932, by Post Pub. Co.

Minneapolis, Minn.—People in the northwest do not know how lucky they are. Their economic situation is so much better than that in other parts of the country that the relatively small amount of unemployment plus the prospects of a good grain crop makes Minnesota appear decidedly more cheerful than any other state this correspondent has visited.

Diversified farming saved Minnesota. The variety of dairy products and the development of some industries in the northern regions has made this state less dependent upon wheat than it was 20 years ago. It is when the Dakotas produce premium wheat, however, that the Twin Cities, with their elevators and flour mills begin to show signs of activity.

The talk now is that spring wheat will bring a premium of at least 15 cents. This may mean very little to the easterner but it is like El Dorado to the northerner, especially since the cost of production has been materially reduced.

Gov. Floyd Olson, among others here, gave me an interesting picture of conditions in the state. He appeared to have a clear grasp of the economic and agricultural problems confronting Minnesota. He believes that permanent prosperity will never come until the prices of farm commodities are fixed by law. He admits the difficulty in doing this within a single state and recognizes that it is a national problem.

Missed Hoover Dinner
Gov. Olson is a Farmer-Laborite. He recently attracted attention by his absence from President Hoover's dinner to the conference of governors.

"I never received any formal invitation," he related, "and so far as I know no other governor did. The secretary of the governor's conference merely announced that we were all invited and I told the secretary that I could not come, as I was leaving on a 10 o'clock train that night."

The incident is being made into a political issue in Minnesota, the opponents of Governor Olson contending that the governor snubbed the president and that an invitation from the White House is a command and should not have been declined, to all of which the blond and peppery governor replies: "I didn't know we were living in a monarchy."

Although the agricultural counties of this state have been gradually making a readjustment over the last few years, there are some important things going on out here which are of deep significance. Taxpayers organizations are working hard in most counties for a revision of budgets.

Make Job Survey

An unemployment survey experiment is being conducted by the University of Minnesota, which will inevitably attract nationwide attention. It is known as the institute of unemployment. This is an agency set up by the university in cooperation with all the state employment bureaus and with industry. The purpose of the survey is to make an analysis of a typical number of unemployed persons, studying their background and qualifications on the one hand, and seeking to find in industry, jobs that are particularly suitable. In other words a scientific job in redistribution and placement is being attempted on a small scale but with an interesting discovery that will be valuable to all states in handling their unemployment problem.

Thus, out of 1,800 persons registered at the institute, jobs have been found for 1,500. The work is costing a half million dollars and is expected to be completed within two years. The money has been furnished by the Rockefeller foundation and the Laura Spellman fund. Dr. Lotus V. Soffman, president of the University of Minnesota, told me that the survey had proceeded far enough to indicate that a simple system could be devised for establishment in every state, making possible a redistribution not only for the white collar workers but of all classes who are now unemployed. He seemed to think that with the disorganization created by technological unemployment, it would be more than ever necessary in the future for industry to cooperate with properly coordinated placement agencies.

It is refreshing to find Minnesota still maintaining her tradition of progressive ideas and looking forward to an agricultural equilibrium at a not far distant date.

Picking the PRESIDENTS 1856 - 1932

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of a series of articles describing national political conventions and campaign from the 50's to now.)

BY ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
Washington —(AP)— Presidential candidates of today were just getting a start in life when the political spotlight shone upon the rugged features and massive body of Grover Cleveland, anti-Tammany, reform governor of New York.

Cleveland led the democrats out of a wilderness of defeat that had endured 28 years by beating James G. Blaine of Maine, the "plumed knight," in the 1884 presidential race.

Appearing on the G. O. P. horizon were two men destined to play tremendously important roles in national affairs. They were the "young reformer" of New York City, Theodore Roosevelt, and the likewise youthful, yellow-bearded Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts.

Enthusiastic Convention
The republicans nominated Blaine amid a perfect hurricane of unchained enthusiasm, one frenzied galleryite climbing out on a ceiling girder and seizing a flag in his teeth, waved it high above the cheering convention multitude.

Young Roosevelt opposed the nomination, and after Blaine's victory the press said: Roosevelt feels very sad and is going to Dakota to become a cowboy.

Cleveland, easily nominated, also won the election after a bitter campaign. The republican platform of 1884 called for a high protective tariff, international bimetalism, the regulation of interstate tariff and the upbuilding of the navy. The democrats denounced the tariff, pledged civil service reform and reduction of taxes.

Lily Langtry and Mary Anderson were stage favorites of the period, and a boy named Calvin Coolidge was toiling on his father's tiny farm at Plymouth, Vt. Franklin D. Roosevelt, now a candidate for the democratic presidential nomination, was a 2-year-old baby in New York city when Cleveland was elected.

Preceding Cleveland had been James A. Garfield of Ohio, erstwhile carpenter, who had defeated General Winfield S. Hancock of Pennsylvania by a mere 7,000 popular votes.

Railways Being Expanded
This was the era of rapid railway expansion and commercial development. Nine out of ten stocks listed on the New York exchange were railroad shares. Jay Gould was the "terror of Wall Street."

The smooth-faced candidate of today would have seemed lacking in "he-man" qualities to the bearded voters in 1888. The "big bristled boys" were considered men of strength and substance. A smooth face was well nigh affirmative.

The 1888 campaign was principally a tariff fight. Cleveland was re-nominated as a tariff reform advocate, while the G. O. P. nominated Benjamin Harrison of Indiana on a strong protection platform.

Harrison was elected with the electoral vote 233 to 168, although Cleveland received a popular plurality of 95,000 votes. Both houses were republican, and the McKinley tariff bill, raising duties about 50 per cent, was enacted.

The prohibition party, gaining steadily in adherents, held its national convention at Indianapolis with Frances Willard, the founder of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, the heroine of the meeting. A news story of the convention carried the caption: "Drinkers of Water Convention Begins With Lemonade and Speeches."

Ladies' summer shoes then were of extra high cut, either buttoned or laced, and sold for $3.45. Women's hats were so high carriage tops in New York had to be raised to accommodate them.

In two occasions he knocked her on the shins, she said, although it was not mentioned whether or not it was under a bridge table.

KNOOR RECEIVES 20 TONS OF FERTILIZER

Shiocton Farmer to Experiment With Various Plots of Ground

BY W. F. WINSEY

Shiocton—As a result of increasing the yield of cabbage, corn and small grain in fertilizer plots on his farm last summer, Herman Knoor, who resides north of this village has lately unloaded a car of 20 tons commercial fertilizer for use on his crops this summer.

The fertilizers consist of 3-8-8 for use on cabbage, this mixture having done the best on his soil in the experimental plots last summer and 16-8-8 for corn. Mr. Knoor was one of several Outagamie county farmers who ran fertilizer plots last year with the assistance of G. A. Sell, county agent, and perhaps will be the only farmers to run plots this year. Other plots, however, are being prepared by the Smith-Hughes students of Shiocton high school under supervision of their instructor

W. D. Brownson, and Mr. Sell on the farm of the Outagamie county asylum.

Mr. Knoor, Mr. Sell and Mr. Brownson are intending to check on the effect of commercial fertilizers of various formulas on all fertilizer plots again this summer. They do this by comparing the quality and yields of fertilized, and unfertilized plots, side by side.

Because Mr. Knoor lost 35 acres of sweet clover through winter-killing, he may plant a considerable acreage of soybeans for emergency hay this spring. Not discouraged by his severe loss, he seeded 30 acres to sweet clover this spring.

In the opinion of Mr. Knoor, the acreage of cabbage in the vicinity of Shiocton will not be cut down this spring, but the yields will be reduced next fall due to the use of less than the usual quantities of commercial fertilizers.

Mr. Knoor has announced the arrival of the first maggot flies in the cabbage bed last Wednesday.

MASQUERADE
This country has an iron jaw.
It needs it to take up the shock of the blows aimed at its confidence not only in government, but in humanity. The revelation that Curtis, the boat builder, who has sat in on the Lindbergh counsels for weeks, was the builder of a cruel hoax, a lie from start to finish, is dumbfounding.
When something betrays, either of dreadful or glorious aspect, riveting the attention of the nation upon the event and the actors in it, some men and women will be found to desperately struggle for "a place in the sun." Many of these are actuated by a craving for money but there are others too who hunger only for publicity.
The longing for fame, decently and justly earned, is a natural craving because men desire the rewards fairly belonging to their efforts. But the struggle here must not be confused with fame. Here the effort is a striving for notoriety, for notoriety to them is an intoxicating cup that goes quickly to head. Few are they who really strive for it that are not a bit cracked.
The footlight, the limelight, the spotlight, publicity—what ridiculous and criminal things men will do to gain thy jaded and flippant favors!
"It is the burden of history," said Fihlayson, "to tell what man has been, and the burden of law to tell what he does," but where shall we place the burden of explaining what he is?
A monster creeps out of the night, slinks up the side of a house, takes and destroys a child, leaving but slight evidence of its slimy trail.
Keen minds, anxious and willing hearts, splendid fighting men, tug and pull, stretch and strain at the heavy task of discovering and apprehending the monster. People, even though horrified at the savage brutality of the crime fail to fully realize what the struggle now portends. The monster must be stopped. It must be destroyed, obliterated. Either that or the race and its civilization goes the way the child went. And the monster in one form or another inhabits the entire land. Its arrogance is only controlled by its danger. Danger to it is constructed solely by the people.
And while so many were diligently at work in order to preserve civilization including weaklings, hysterics and the like, the latter, attracted by the bright lights blazing everywhere, turned fantastic stories out of their morbid minds with which to delay, obstruct and thwart the processes of the law and give the monster as great a handicap as possible. What if a thousand, ten thousand, perished so long as an innate craving were gratified?
People of the Currier stamp represent a dangerous class because their conduct is always helpful to criminals who rest and smile as they hear the baying of the hounds of the law becoming more indistinct following a false trail.
The mentality of such a person may be interesting study for those who strive to comprehend that which is beyond comprehension, but be assured that vanity, "that never failing vice of fools," makes up a large share of the picture, if, indeed, it does not cover the entire canvas.
What a giddy chaos, what a flickering dancing chimera it must all seem to the Lindberghs, dizzy as they must be at the wild whirling of ugly crimes and heartless, sinister frauds.

BACK TO THE LAND
Figures from the 1930 census show a pronounced shift of population from country to city as a result of the large industrial expansion in the United States following the period of the World war. A prediction is made in Scribners that the next federal census, 1940, will disclose a marked reversal of this movement.
This industrial expansion, so bountiful to the metropolitan centers, failed to provide the agricultural communities with a like measure of prosperity. The farmer was looked upon as the proverbial poor relation and rural areas became dotted with deserted farms.

Times are changing. Many a man now jostled in the teeming crowds of the cities is casting longing eyes toward the open spaces. A pleasing outlook in that it portends a gradual appreciation in the value of the native soil which served our forefathers to such good purpose and which still is the basis of our national wealth.
It may be that present distressing conditions will serve to revive the pioneer spirit and a readiness to face hardships with fortitude. Our fathers, one hundred years ago, marched into the wilderness carrying with them precious stores of seeds and asking merely the opportunity to fight for their existence. They neither asked for nor received welfare or bonus. In them was a conquering spirit that brought glorious achievement.
This same land lies out of doors ready to welcome those who had come to scorn its heritage, so replete with the blessings and comforts of life that our fathers found there. The hard work of reclaiming it is done and many a city dweller faced with a sterile outlook would be surprised to learn what a little land, intelligently worked, will produce, not the least of which for the right kind of folks is a crop of unbeatable independence and good citizenship.
Any movement back to the land is something to regard with pleasant anticipation, and if along with it there should come a revival of the old pioneer spirit that hewed and dug its way into the wilderness, so much the better. For what, after all, is this depression? It is doing without the things our fathers never had.

THUMBS DOWN
That part of the President's three-point relief program which proposes to advance a billion dollars if necessary "to private business for reproductive enterprises, assured by contract," is fraught with many wicked dangers.
The President's example of "a pottery company with contracts for $100,000 on work it couldn't do with existing facilities, and that this company could not get a loan" to finance the work, will serve as a good example by which to test his theory.
If "the contracts for $100,000" are with solvent and reliable concerns and require the payment of the money upon the delivery of the goods, or shortly thereafter, and the pottery company itself is manned by a reliable personnel, it is a strange case indeed where it cannot borrow the money at a bank.
Banks have plenty of money but will not loan it for long periods of time. Most of them are anxious to finance short time contracts but none of them would be willing to put up capital for a permanent investment in a pottery or other company. Quite likely the pottery company wants the government to build it permanent facilities but permit it to use the receipts of the contract for its own purposes. If this particular pottery company has not sufficient facilities to handle jobs offered it quite likely there are others that have.
The most fearful abuses are possible when the government deals indiscriminately with a variety of businesses all looking for the use of its money.
The distress of the depression, in so far as it is accentuated by instances the President cites, is much to be preferred than pouring a billion dollars of the people's money into the construction of permanent facilities for manufacturing concerns, too many of which we have already.
The aftermath of such an undertaking will make Fall and Daugherty look like amateurs.
Scientists, in their experiments with growth control of animals, have made bulldozers, salamanders and even grow twice their ordinary size through injection of a fluid from pituitary glands of oxen and sheep.

POST-WOMAN
WHAT price glory? . . . and, as we read about the infamous hoaxes perpetrated on the crucified Lindberghs, we wonder more and more about it . . . what price glory? . . . and we wonder if doing mankind a great favor is worth the effort . . . "But," some philosophers tell us, "you cannot expect your reward on earth" . . . And why not? . . . isn't it on earth where those favors are done? . . . what price glory? . . . what is the reward of high ambitions, courage and conscientiousness? . . . who cares if you do something worthwhile? . . . what price glory? . . . forgive us, folks . . . but the background of this whole affair is something beyond our conception . . .

It used to be the custom of politicians running for office to say, "Support my candidacy" or "Support me at the polls." But now, with politicians merely coming back to be re-elected, it's "Can you support me in the manner to which I am accustomed?"
And How They Take Care of You
Yep, the politicians are very capable. Just vote 'em into office and they'll take care of themselves.

The Merry-Go-Round

Personal Health Talks
BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author
THE MANAGEMENT OF CATARACT
RACI
This is the second of a series of talks about cataract, but I want readers to understand clearly that I have no remedy or method of treatment to offer. I am giving this general information about cataract because many correspondents have asked for it and because it will do nobody harm to have his misconceptions of such a condition corrected. I am aware that people who do know what every one ought to know about cataract probably do not trouble to write and ask questions. It is the people who do not know or who have been misinformed who write to me. But then, the purpose of this column is not to tell people things they already know, but rather to tell 'em whether the things they know are so. Sometimes it makes 'em pretty mad when they learn that something they know about health or illness is not so and when they get mad they can be pretty nasty about it. On the other hand, when they learn that something they know is so sometimes they become quite elated about it and even mention the matter to somebody or other.
True to our Hippocratic oath we skip lightly over the symptoms of cataract, hesitating for an instant to say that in most instances there is some slow impairment of vision for near work which reading glasses somehow fail to correct. The oculists with much experience say that improper glasses can do much to create changes within the eye which manifest themselves as cataracts later. I am merely a physician, not an oculist, and I give it as my impression that they refer particularly to the fitting of glasses for people under middle age and most particularly to children with near-sightedness. We older folk may do as well or better with the vision tests of the optometrist or optician, but the younger ones generally require the aid of drops for an accurate examination and hence they should go to the eye physician (oculist) only.
When cataract is diagnosed, besides the careful correction of refraction with proper glasses, it is well to inquire into the general living habits or hygiene of the patient. The amount of close work must be limited. The illumination of the work is particularly important. Indeed, one sees ruinous lighting and unnecessary, not to say wasteful and repellent glare everywhere in business life. One wanders how much eyestrain and ill-temper is due to this extravagant illumination.
It is a good habit to interrupt the close work frequently for half an hour or more to rest the eyes. For that matter, it is a fine habit for anybody who does close work to look up and away to whatever distant view there may be, every little while for just a moment. Throw back the head to do this—I said look up. This tends to counteract, in a measure, the ill consequences of prolonged work with the eyes dependent, looking down, and actually elongated in the anterior-posterior axis.
One with beginning cataract should take daily walks of from five blocks to six miles, depending on general strength.
Smoked or dark glasses should be worn only when there is actual dazzling by sunlight. I think that is true in any case, whether of cataract or just imaginary eyestrain.
I do not know whether any charlatans at present claim to have a remedy which "absorbs" or "clears up" cataract. Certainly this is not possible.
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
As the Lady Remarked
Lunch of a male insurance clerk consisted of two items and nothing else, viz., one-half pint of sour cream and four oranges. Is this a sensible combination and what particular benefit if any would said foods be to the human stomach? (S. W. F.)
Answer—You know what the lady said when she kissed the cow. The combination is O. K. if it appeals to one's taste. Any combination of foods is. Do not be misled by the hokum of the self-commended food specialists concerning right and wrong combinations of foods.

Some Persons Have a Lot of Gall
A year ago you had a diet for persons with gallstones. It told what foods to eat and what foods to avoid on account of the effect on the gall sac . . . (L. G.)
Answer—They should avoid foods containing much cholesterol, such as yolk of eggs, liver, cream, animal fats, olive oil, wheat, beans. That is with a view of preventing the formation of gallstones. But in the event that you already have a sac of precious stones in your midst then it is a bit late to eschew eggs and beans. The gall-sac contracts in response to the eating of any fat or oil, so if there are cramps or colic it is best to avoid all fats, oils or greasy foods and make the diet mainly starch, sugars, or protein foods such as lean meat, cheese, white of eggs. However, if there is not much pain or colic, the liberal use of oils or fatty foods favors drainage of the gall-sac by its contractions. There, now, you will hardly know what you ought to avoid, and it's just as well, perhaps.
Wheat to Eat
Would like to try your suggestions as to how to use wheat, how to buy it and the benefits derived from it. (F. P.)
Answer—Read "Chapter in the Biography of a Bushel of Wheat" in this column tomorrow.

The Tynmites
By Hal Cochran
SOME of the kites the Tynites flew dove high whenever a strong wind blew, while others always dipped and fell. "What's wrong?" one Tyn cried.
"Why don't my kite rise in the air? I have a poor one. That's not fair." The play man said, "I'll show you, son. Just stand here by my side."
And then he took a piece of string and added, "This will be the thing that I will use to make your kite so high as high can be."
"It's what we call a tail, you see. Gee, you can learn a lot from me. I'll tie the string tight to the kite and then we'll turn it free."
He did as he had said he would and soon his plan worked very good. Wee Windy held the kite string and then ran like everything.
A puff of wind came sailing by and up the kite went, very high. 'Twas lots of fun to watch it, 'cause 'twould dip and jump and swing.
The play man then brought forth a kite that really was a funny sight. It had a very silly face. Said Copsy, "I'll fly that!"
And as he pulled it into air, it gave all the bunch a scare by doing crazy turn-arounds and then by falling flat.
"I'll have to fix that up, I guess," exclaimed the play man. "It's a mess. Perhaps one end's too heavy. They won't fly when they're that way."
"Just let it lay there on the ground. Another big kite shall be found. And you can fly it, Duncy, if you think you know the way."
"Course Duncy was a tickled lad. He took the kite and said, "I've had a lot of good experience. Just watch what I can do."
The kite soon rose up toward the skies and then there came a big surprise. As Duncy hung on to the string he shortly went up, too."

A Bystander In Washington
BY HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington—One day toward the latter part of last November, when it seemed apparent that the democrats had wrested control of the house from the republicans, a gentleman by the name of John Curry from New York breakfasted with Jack Garner at the capitol.
John Curry is the boss of Tammany, an organization represented by a bloc of some 20 or more democrats in the house.
After a breakfast lasting 20 minutes or more, the Tammany boss and Garner emerged from the house restaurant, their faces wreathed in smiles.
"Our meeting was purely social," Garner told newspapermen.
But the impression was soon abroad that the meeting of these two was more than a social affair. Reports were circulated that "Boss" Curry had assured the Texan of his complete support.
One bit of gossip heard after the meeting and which caused some amusement was that the 72nd congress would be better attended by the Tammany man than some of the congresses in the past.
"Tammany Boys" Present
New York is five hours by rail removed from the capitol. The temptation to spend the week-end at home lured many of the New York congressmen away from the house chamber.
Whether pressure was brought to bear on them or not, it is true that the "Tammany boys," as they are referred to on "the hill," have been sticking around this session perhaps more than ever before.
And they have been making themselves felt. There have been times, no doubt, when the house leadership longed for their absence. For they work so smoothly and sometimes with such devastating effect on proposed legislation that the leadership has been thrown at times into despair.
They sit together on the floor. During the fight on the tax bill and on the economy measure they were going at full speed all the time. The serious Boylan, the robust, big-voiced O'Connor, the immaculate, earnest Sirovich and the dapper, white-haired Black—all fought with unremitting fury at proposals to slash salaries and effect other economies.
Satisfy, Too
The veteran Boylan collapsed on the eve of the vote to cut federal salaries and had to be taken to a hospital. But he sent word to the house by his colleague Sirovich: "If you need me tonight, boys, I'll set up from this bed and come."
They employ every tactic to advantage. Black, a searist of the first rank, gets in some of the best blows. Here's a sample of his method of attack:
"The law giveth and the law taketh away, cursed be the name of the law. That should be the text for this (economy) bill. . . . What a chance for a third party! With the federal employes and taxpayers singing 'Why don't you take all of me? With the ideopublicans crooning 'Deedie, stay away from my door. And the democratic leaders acting like 'Minnie the Moocher' kicking the song around. . . ."
He knows prices are way down but that in some cases, qualities are down too . . . and while he'd enjoy paying a very low price . . . he couldn't stand for a poor quality.
He has always worn good clothes. He has always come to us for he knows that no matter what's happening in Congress, he can depend on us.

Seen And Heard In New York
BY WILLIAM GAINES
New York—I walked in on D. W. Griffith at his hotel and found him reading "A Short Introduction to the History of Human Stupidity."
He was amused that a "short introduction" to the subject should make a tome of such weight, but said he supposed even that was not ample enough.
"Since I started this thing," D. W. revealed, "I've been thinking about my failure to patent the 'fade out' after I invented it. Why, they can't make a talking today without using it, and I might have made millions of dollars."
The inventor's "fade off" you may have heard called the "fade out." It is the method of gradually dissolving a movie scene from view, instead of clipping it off abruptly.
Pioneer in Sound
In the course of our conversation D. W. pool-pooed all those who asserted he was one of the hold-outs who took up sound reluctantly. Said the man who blazed the path of innovation for all the Hollywood and German directors:
"I put a sound film on Broadway years before the method won general popularity."
"Don't you remember back there in 1922 or '23, I showed 'Dream Street' with sound over in Town Hall? There wasn't a theater available for my equipment. I used discs, and Ralph Graves sang a theme song. A negro character spoke quite a few lines."
"I tried to sell the idea then, but there were too many complications. It would have meant equipping a string of theaters and large production investment. They didn't have any faith in sound in those days."
I asked him how he got the idea for close-ups.
"From portraits," he told me. "I always studied the paintings of the masters to see what I could get from their pictorial qualities for use on the screen. I decided that by disregarding the full-length of the figure, dramatic effect could be heightened at times. Of course, there was a good deal of criticism of my experiment, but just see how the close-up is used today!"
Griffith, by the way, wants to direct a story built around one of the great masterpieces—preferably one of Van Dyck's paintings. He says a camera can take an effective close-up of a Van Dyck, which is free from daubs; then his lens would penetrate the canvass and get at the romance behind it.
Count on Griffith, as fascinated as ever by the making of movies, always experimenting with new effects and studying sound from the engineering angle, to do something to discount his last directorial effort, which was so severely criticized.
Another production he has in mind is a story "interweaving the great philosophical teachings," grander in scale than his "Intolerance." It would be his magnum opus, but before he does that, he says, he may have to try for some quick-fire box-office pictures to finance the undertaking.
Sharps And Flats
Ross Alexander, the Brooklyn boy, is one "little theater" product who made his way in the acting business. Archie Hopkins, the producer, keeps a cow. He is fond of milk and wants to be sure it's fresh.
Leslie Howard, on the other hand, is a buttermilk fiend.
Today's Anniversary
GERMANS BOBBI LONDON
On May 19, 1918, London was the victim of another air raid. Under cover of night, numerous German bombers flew over the city and released thousands of tons of explosives, killing 44 and injuring 179 persons. The Germans escaped with a load of only five planes.
One of America's greatest war aces, Major Raoul Lufberry, met his death while engaging an enemy plane above the German lines near Toul. The plane which downed him was later demolished by a French pilot.
Australian troops engaged German troops at Villers-sur-Ancres, and took the village with 380 prisoners and 20 machine guns, a German dispatch said.
taken away, cursed be the name of the law. That should be the text for this (economy) bill. . . . What a chance for a third party! With the federal employes and taxpayers singing 'Why don't you take all of me? With the ideopublicans crooning 'Deedie, stay away from my door. And the democratic leaders acting like 'Minnie the Moocher' kicking the song around. . . ."

This man isn't running around like a chicken with its head off looking for a suit bargain.
He knows prices are way down but that in some cases, qualities are down too . . . and while he'd enjoy paying a very low price . . . he couldn't stand for a poor quality.
He has always worn good clothes. He has always come to us for he knows that no matter what's happening in Congress, he can depend on us.

CIVILIZED MORALS ARE ENDANGERED AT U. W., CHAPPEL SAYS

Names Frank and 3 Profs as Foes of "Fundamental Principles"

Milwaukee (AP)—John B. Chapple, editor and candidate for United States senate, told an audience in the auditorium here last night that students at the University of Wisconsin are being subjected to influences destructive to civilized morals.

Chapple named President Glenn Frank, Professors Max Otto, Ellery Leonard and Alexander Meiklejohn as leaders of an "undercover attack upon fundamental American principles."

Chapple criticized Prof. Leonard's liberal views of sex, described Prof. Otto as "an outstanding atheist," and asserted Dr. Frank and Prof. Meiklejohn are members of the American Civil Liberties union, which he called an "un-American organization."

At times the audience applauded and at times booed. His listeners appeared amused during the reading of several letters and newspaper articles relating to sex conditions at the university and particularly so when Chapple read a quotation which he credited to Professor Leonard that "the wronged husband, as a gentleman, waits passively outside, even if he has in his pocket his own master key."

In the audience were Frederic L. Cramer, managing editor, and several reporters of the Daily Cardinal, student publication at the university. They came to interview Chapple on the source of his information concerning the university, but said after the meeting that Chapple declined to be interviewed.

Chapple inferred that his talk was primarily an answer to an address by President Frank at a recent university convocation in which he defended "his ideas and those of some professors as bearing upon the morals of the student body."

Commission Does Well In Fish Propagation

BY BERT CLAFLIN

Now that the trout season is open, and reports that come to me show that these fish are very scarce, let me give you some information on what the conservation commission did last year in the way of fish propagation. It is a matter in which thousands of anglers of Wisconsin are vitally interested.

Clafin

Methods of fish propagation in vogue will stand much improvement, so far as game species in particular other than brook trout are concerned. In fact, I believe that the great majority of fry planted are lost because of being devoured by larger fish and for various other reasons.

However, for the good work that is being accomplished by the commission it must be given full credit. It is logical to believe that as time goes on great improvement will be shown in propagation methods which concern game fish other than our brook trout.

During 1931 the hatcheries raised and distributed in various waters about the state 5,956,381 Speckled trout fingerlings; 1,971,930 Brown trout fingerlings; and 63,720 Rainbow fingerlings—a total of 7,992,031 brook trout. This is a commendable showing, and it is emphasized by the fact that no fry whatever were planted, which indicates that progress is being made along the lines of proper propagation methods.

Now, let's have a look at what was done in the way of the other species.

Of walleyes 292,822,000 fry were planted; 217,000 black bass; 1,620,000 muskies; 55,199,000 perch; 300,000 pickereel; and miscellaneous 39,233. In addition to these, 7,200,000 whitefish fry and 32,705,900 lake trout fry were planted, both of which furnish some excellent food for the larger fish in the waters where they were placed. My investigations convince me that planting commercial fish fry is wasted effort. A far better way would be to close the seasons on these species I have mentioned, whitefish and lake trout, during their spawning seasons and enforce the law during such closed periods. Nature would then reproduce them.

However, in order to give the commission credit for its meritorious work we must not overlook the fact that it raised and planted 479,430 fingerling black bass, which is very creditable work; 72,335 perch; 3,000 pickereel; 1,250 walleyes; and 294 muskellunge, all fingerlings. And in the commercial line, 60,000 fingerling lake trout.

The above figures show that for every fingerling that was planted, 604 fry were also deposited in different waters, but we can safely say that of the latter a small percentage actually survived.

Cottagers Suffer Annual "Plague" Of Lake Flies

The annual scourge of flies, which might well be compared with the locust plague depicted in "Africa Speaks," again confronts cottagers along the shores of Lake Winnebago. According to pioneer cottagers, the flies are thicker than they have been in years.

Cottages, sheds, piers, trees and other foliage is literally "plastered" with the big bugs. In several instances it is almost impossible to see through window or porch screens, there being about 15 to 25 flies to the square inch.

The grass around some cottages is a seething mass of the insects, and scoops and steps are covered with dead flies to a depth of an inch in some places.

The span of life for each fly is 24 hours, but the "plague" usually lasts for two weeks, unless cold weather kills them off at an earlier date. The shallow waters and pools along the shore, the breeding places for the flies, are filled with larvae.

OTHER TIRES have sled-runner ribs in the tread-center. GOODYEAR puts traction HERE where it belongs.

The difference in SAFETY is about 10,000 Miles

ANYONE who gives a little thought to non-skid safety must quickly conclude that there are only two kinds of tire treads.

One has straight, smooth, sled-runner ribs of rubber where the tire contacts the road.

The other has tough, stout, sharp-edged, sure-biting traction blocks in the center of the tread.

Virtually all tires fit the first description—and the one important exception is the Goodyear All-Weather Tread.

It is interesting to note in this connection that more people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind.

THEY must find by experience that center traction makes Goodyear Tires safer—but you might like to ask "how much?"

The answer, as nearly as we can figure is—about 10,000 miles.

A new tire with smooth rubber in the center of the tread is no safer than a Goodyear after its tread-center has worn smooth in use.

And judging from average driving experience, Goodyear All-Weather Tread Tires keep their clean-cut center traction—their non-skid safety—for somewhere around the first 10,000 miles.

You can draw your own conclusions, but it looks to us as if this made Goodyears 10,000 miles safer than other tires.

There seem to be several million motorists like yourself who have reached the same conclusion, because Goodyear Tires are first choice by millions.

If you want extra safety in the next tires you buy, just ask yourself one question: Why buy a second-choice tire when first-choice costs no more?

Why be satisfied with a second-choice tire when first-choice costs no more!

Some Girls, Boys Always Need Babying

BY ANGELO PATRI

"My son is now eighteen years of age. I have struggled with him since he was born but he is just the same troublesome child as in the beginning. He never learned a lesson in school without my standing over him. He played truant. He ran away. He broke into a store. He took the car out and had an accident. He will not work. How long must I endure this?"

I do not know. Sometimes as long as the child lives. Sometimes only a brief time. There are boys and girls who cannot be trained to take care of themselves and become self supporting citizens. The schools teach them the forms of education. They can read and write and do arithmetic. Sometimes they get through high school. They do industrial work and it is hard to keep track of them in any field they enter.

There is no school for such boys and girls. They are not feeble minded. They are not criminal. But they are helpless without direction and their potentialities are threatening. Many of them get into trouble with the authorities and are sent to reform schools and jails. What can we do to save them?

At present there seems to be no way out. The people have to worry along with them until something happens. Either they start to work and maintain themselves, or they become public charges. If we had some sort of state school to which these children had to go, were compelled to go until they showed themselves fit to work outside, it would save us all a deal of worry and a lot of money.

We insist that all children under a certain age go to school. When a certain birthday passes they are free to go as they like. They are unable to sustain themselves. It seems to me that when this becomes plain to the community that the child should be taken over by the state and sent to a boarding school where he could be trained to serve a useful purpose to the people and to himself.

Why couldn't such boys be trained to build roads, reforest, reclaim lands, and the like? Why not teach them to raise cattle, bees, poultry, and vegetables? If their trend is toward mechanics they could be taught to repair and keep in order the machines of the government offices. There is plenty of work for them if we gathered them and put them into schools that taught them how to do the things they could do.

When they become proficient in their fields they could be sent out to places found for them. They could be kept under supervision for a term of years, as long as they lived if necessary. Every boy and every girl can be made useful and so made happy if we set about it.

We as a people must take these helpless children on our conscience. It is not enough to say we provided schools and they did not learn; we offered them work and they refused it. We must take them by the hand and lead them to where can get the teaching they can take and do the work for which they are fitted. The day is upon us when we must account for each child from birth to maturity. If you tell me that this is interfering with the freedom of the individual I must tell you that there is little of freedom for the child who is enslaved by his own helplessness.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

WANT EARLY POTATOES? THEN "TOAST" THE SEED

Wooster, Ohio — (P) — Potatoes grow more rapidly if they are warmed a couple of weeks before planting, particularly if the soil is cold and the potatoes are from the north, the Ohio agricultural experiment station points out.

If the seed potatoes are received from the north, they probably are cold, the station says, and as early varieties usually are planted while the soil also is cold the result is that they sprout slowly.

If left in a warm room a couple of weeks they sprout much more quickly.

MEMORIAL FUND FOR LINDBERGH BABY IS SOUGHT IN ENGLAND

London — (AP) — Sylvia Pankhurst, noted British socialist, said today she was launching an appeal in England for a Lindbergh baby memorial fund which, she said, would be used "to do something for children" if Colonel Lindbergh does not need the money.

Miss Pankhurst's notion was born of reports here that Colonel Lindbergh had expended his entire fortune in the search for his kidnapped child. The move was typical of the sympathy felt for the Lindberghs here.

Miss Pankhurst said she would find others to act on the committee to take charge of the funds and stressed that she did not want the money sent to her.

HOOVER IS WRITE-IN CANDIDATE IN OREGON

Portland, Ore. — (P) — Herbert Hoover will be a write-in candidate for the Republican nomination to succeed himself in Oregon's presidential primary election Friday.

Joseph Irwin France of Maryland is the only presidential candidate on the Republican ticket. There has been no organized sentiment for or against France and little activity in behalf of President Hoover.

Unless "Hoover" is written in by enough voters, the state's 18 Republican delegates to the Chicago convention will be pledged to support France until released by him or all hope of victory has vanished.

The Democratic delegation of 10, it is generally conceded will go to Chicago pledged to support the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt, New York governor. William H. Murray, Oklahoma governor, was the only other Democratic listed on the ballot.

Total registration exceeds that of 1930 or 1928, with the Democrats showing a heavy increase. The Republicans a decrease.

Most interest centered on nominations for senator and for congressman, with prohibition and power development dominant in these contests.

THE STORY OF SUE

By Margery Hale

JOE IS TOLD OF THE FORGED CHECK

"SALLY owes me an apology. I don't owe her one," Ruth found herself answering Joe Raynor's accusation. "I haven't wronged her. I thought I was helping her. Will you ask her to come over here, please? Oh, no, you can't. She isn't home."

"Yes, she is. I left her at home. She has a headache."

Ruth eyed the man coolly. "Sally doesn't get headaches. She never had one in her life. You ought to know that. You are a physician. But I'm beginning to think that there are a great many things about Sally that you don't know."

"Never mind the philosophy, I'm not interested." Still that hurt, cold voice. "If Sally owes you an apology . . . or you owe her one . . . it is going to be made tonight. I'll go over and get her."

"No! Maybe she does have a headache. Maybe she has started to get them lately."

"I'll telephone. If she's there she'll have to answer."

He crossed the floor, picked up the phone, dialed the Barnes residence. He waited. There was no answer. Ruth could hear the faraway buzzing in the instrument. Slightly disconcerted, Joe Raynor put down the phone and turned around. "You win," he said. "That is, on the first lap."

"How did you know she wasn't home?" Joe asked then, when Ruth didn't answer.

"I would rather Sally herself told you where she went. You would believe her. You don't believe me. I'm just a stick of wood that finally woke up and started off in the wrong direction. Nothing more."

"Sally did not forge that check. And you did, according to her story." Joe went on. "I have a right to know where the story doesn't hold water. I know Sally is innocent. She couldn't forge anything. And I didn't think you could. But Sally said . . . Sally proved that you did."

"Then Sally lied. I didn't forge that. Why should I want to get into trouble? But I'll tell you what happened if you must know." She told the story quickly, up to the time that she had gone over to her own home and made Sally confess. She was a little hesitant there. She didn't mention the fact that Sally had needed the money to help another man. That there would have been some sort of catastrophe if she hadn't obtained it.

"Why did Sally need the money?" Joe Raynor asked.

"Ask her. Why did she say that I wanted it?"

"Because you were broke and homeless."

"I had enough money to pay for my medicine tonight, anyway. Even if you did take a contemptible means of giving it back."

"Giving it back? I put it in an envelope and mailed it to you the second you were out of the office. It was on the surgical table."

"No, it wasn't. I put it on the desk."

"But I found two one-dollar bills on the table!"

"Then how did they get in my pocket?" Ruth asked.

For a second the man thought, brows hunched together. Then he nodded. "Somebody else must have left two bills there . . . I know now . . . I put them there and forgot to put them away . . . and in the . . ."

"Don't call it by any name," Ruth interrupted sarcastically. "I've gotten it already. So have you. Unpleasant things are best forgotten."

NEXT: Ruth talks.

MY NEIGHBOR Says —

Don't use soda when washing china with gilt on it. If you do don't be surprised if the gilt gradually disappears.

To make a pineapple egg-nogg, beat an egg until it is light (white and yolk together), add a speck of salt, 2 teaspoonful of fine sugar and 1 cup of cold whole milk. One tablespoon of juice from a fresh, ripe pineapple is now added, a few drops at a time, and beaten into the egg and milk. It will not curdle, as pineapple juice is not an acid like lemon juice.

WE WOMEN

By Virginia Vane

READER'S ADVICE TO HELEN TO LOOK FOR NEW METHODS NOT NEW HUSBAND—TOO MUCH GLOOM MAKES JACK A DULL WORKER

Dear Virginia Vane: I read your column every day and find it very interesting. The other day Helen wrote to you saying that after six months of married life she was discontented and worried for fear she had made a mistake in her choice of a husband. You were wise to advise her to give the marriage a fair trial. I had Helen's experience myself, eight years ago and I am sure there are plenty of young women who wonder before their first year of marriage was up whether it was worth while to get married at all. After six months of marriage I began to think that I had been a fool to exchange freedom and good times for a daily routine existence and a hundred irritations of everyday life. I began to think it over though and thank goodness, I tried a new method instead of looking for a new husband. I knew that I had a quick temper which sometimes started all the quarrels because I would blurt out the truth about every little thing that irritated me. So I decided to curb my temper and to realize every minute of the day that my husband had just as much to put up with as I did. Nothing is better for a bride than to keep on telling herself she hasn't any more to complain of than her husband. I've been married eight years now and my husband and I are so happy I could wish that everyone in the world had made such a success of marriage. Things which used to irritate us are now matters of no moment and we laugh it all off. Tell Helen to stick to her husband, think always of his good qualities, praise him and never be afraid to let him see how much she cares for him. I think she can be happy if she will change her attitude for his sake. M. W. L.

Thank you M. W. L. It's a good recipe for getting over the first irritations and discords which accompany some marriage adjustments. Let's hope Helen is able to work a cure in her own mind which will enable us to jot down another happy marriage on her list.

ZED: Are your parents still objecting to the steady suitor—and if so why? If they've come to accept him there is no reason why you shouldn't see him and have a good time. But for your own sake keep your other boy friends as well. Certainly don't start making protestations of love, and promises yet.

You were feeling pretty lonely and blue when you wrote that letter to him, weren't you? And his swift and miraculous appearance on the heels of the letter—just when you were ill and even more in need of friendship and sympathy—gave the whole affair a very romantic flavor.

But don't begin to talk about love until you know something more of your own mind and till you're able to determine whether what you feel is really the grand passion or merely gratitude and relief for someone to be fond of you. Give yourself time to come to a sensible decision and in the meantime see any other boys who may want a date.

D. G.: No, it isn't right to keep the whole gum problem on your mind all the time. And it isn't heartless and irresponsible of you to go out and have a good time when you can. Figure it this way: By your efforts you're bringing a certain amount of money into the family which helps considerably. Therefore you've got to keep your job. In order to be good at your job you've got to take an interest in it—and if you brood continually about the future and about present difficulties you won't have enough pep left over to take an interest in anything.

MAKE-UP FOR THE BRIDE IS NOT OBVIOUS

BY ALICIA HART

Brides need a make-up all their own.

The make-up for white clothes is not applicable to the May or June bride. We still like our brides a little bit demure, a little bit shy and clinging-vine looking.

Go easy on the rouge. No one minds a bride looking as if the bridegroom was making her sign on the dotted line a little against her judgment. Let her look not wan but delicately young, as if she must be protected.

Lipstick should be applied carefully. If you leave the faintest bit of a line right smack down the center of the upper lip, and rouge from this unruddered center line out to the corners at each side, that gives the bride a breathless, shy look, a young look. The lower lip should have much less rouge than the upper. Have the rouge a clear, young geranium-red.

Eyes should not be made up too much. If it is a daytime wedding, use brown mascara and not much of it. The make-up bride just does look theatrical and there are no two ways about it.

Use eye shadow sparingly. The way wedding veils are this year, you will get no protection from them. Your eye will just stand out and your eye shadowing must be skillfully applied so no one will guess how sophisticated you are. Cultures can suit the bride this year. But remember you probably never will wear anything less becoming than the average bridal veil. So curb about the face always help. They just do frame a face as nothing else can. Wavy hair is the next best bet. And, if you insist upon it, you can have a bridal cap and veil that is designed just for you and is far more flattering than most of them are.

DO YOU INHALE?

... wonder why cigarette advertising generally avoids this question?

ONE of the mysteries in cigarette advertising has been the apparent fear of the word "inhale." It seems rather foolish—for everybody inhales—whether they realize it or not . . . every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette.

Think, then, how important it is to be certain that your cigarette smoke is pure and clean—to be sure that you don't inhale certain impurities.

Do you inhale? Lucky Strike has dared to raise this vital question . . . because when you smoke Luckies your delicate membranes get the protection no other cigarette affords. All other methods have been made old-fashioned by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

Do you inhale? Of course you do! So truly this message is for you.

COUNCIL PUTS OFF REPAIR OF WISCONSIN - AVE

Accepts Petition from Property Owners Protest-ing Improvement

Neenah—The city council Wednesday evening voted 5 to 4 to re-spect a petition signed by 42 prop-erty owners on E. Wisconsin-ave protesting against repairing that street now. Those voting for the petition were Aldermen Vandervalk, Har-der, Herziger, Martens, Freeman, and Kalfahs, while Aldermen Beilin, Loehning, Sully and Schmidt voted no.

The property owners voted to im-proving the street now, holding that it would work a hardship on many of them. Alderman Schmidt asked if the municipality was going to fail in providing work for unemployed. He claimed there was $100,000 in the budget for such improvements and the people had petitioned for the im-provement. Alderman Herziger, who made the motion to grant the new petition, claimed there were other street projects in the city which would give unemployed work. Alderman Schmidt stated that if one peti-tion of this nature was granted, oth-er petitions asking similar postpone-ments probably would be received.

Lack of transportation to Oak Hill cemetery during the Memorial day period, a question which arises each year, was discussed, following a request for make Neenah Taxi line to operate its automobiles at 10 cents a person during Memorial day and several days before to accom-modate people wishing to visit graves. Attorney O'Leary claimed there would be no difficulty encoun-tered so far as the city was concern-ed in allowing the taxi line to op-erate its taxis as requested.

May Buy Motorcycle Alderman Martens of the police and fire committee moved to pur-chase a new motorcycle for the po-lice department to replace the one now in use. Some of the aldermen objected, claiming the present ma-chine could be repaired, saving the city approximately $200. The mat-ter was referred to the committee to make further investigation.

Alderman Loehning reported that the task of relief work in the city is getting beyond the poor and ma-yor's committees, and suggested that a list of the city's dependents be placed in the hands of each alder-man who could assist the committee in making investigations of certain cases. The suggestion was unan-imously accepted.

Removal of poles along N. Com-mercial-st by the telephone and electric light companies was dis-cussed. Alderman Schmidt moved that the city proceed with the work. The lines will be placed in the rear of the properties along the street.

Mayor Sande announced various celebrations and meetings to which the council has been invited. Among them are the annual observance of Memorial day, to the Valley League of municipalities meeting Thursday evening at Hotel location, Kaukauna; the dedication of the G. A. R. Memorial tablet at 4 o'clock Fri-day afternoon at Kimberly park; and the inspection and dedication of the new high school field house and field at 7 o'clock Wednesday eve-ning, May 25, at the high school.

A petition for a walk on E. Meyer-ave and Whitlow-st was granted. Bills amounting to $3,552.28 were approved.

DRAW TOURISTS INTO VALLEY, CLUB IS URGED

Cities Along Lake Winne-bago Have Joint Interests, Says Fond du Lac Mayor

Menasha—The mutual interests and advantages of communities in the Fox river valley and the bene-fits of cooperative action in attract-ing tourists to this portion of the state, particularly during the World's fair at Chicago next year, were discussed by H. C. Berndt, president of the Fond du Lac as-sociation of commerce, at a meeting of the Rotary club in Hotel Menasha Wednesday noon.

Mayor George Watson of Fond du Lac also spoke briefly, as did Albert Huebsman of the Fond du Lac com-mission council, M. D. Moore, pres-ident of the Junior association of commerce at Fond du Lac; and Ed-ward Sternz, vice president of the Fond du Lac association of com-merce and president of the com-munity chest committee also attend-ed the session.

The discussion was in line with a plan recently submitted by George Loeschner of Menasha whereby cities of the Fox river valley take cooperative steps toward attract-ing visitors to the valley en route to the World's fair. The plan also would be advantageous as a permanent project, it has been pointed out.

Have Joint Interests

Mayor Watson spoke briefly on the joint interests of valley com-munities, explaining that any pro-ject of general interest to Neenah and Menasha would be of interest to Fond du Lac and other commu-nities on Lake Winnebago and the Fox river.

Berndt, the principal speaker, re-lated the history of Lake Winnebago and described the probable ap-pearance of the valley if the lake did not exist. Residents of the valley often fail to appreciate its natural advantages and steps should be taken to eliminate pollution of its rivers and lakes.

Fond du Lac, Berndt pointed out, has a sewerage disposal plant, and similar equipment should be install-ed by other communities. Construc-tion of a summer hotel and boat livery as a particular attraction to tourists, also is planned he stated.

Ira H. Cough, Rotary president, gave a brief report on activities at the tenth district conference at Eau Claire early this week.

FAIL TO LINK CURTIS WITH KIDNAP GANG

New York School Teacher Is Sought for Questioning on Ransom Payment

The baby and "the three other men" would be found.

Near Main Road

It was recalled that special wires laid by police from the Lindbergh garage along the main road between Hopewell and Princeton, near which the body of the Lindbergh baby was found a week ago.

Chief Walter was quoted as holding the theory that the letter might have been written by one or four men who kidnaped the baby.

He forwarded it to police at Hopewell, where it was stated, but heard nothing further from it.

The exonerated of Curtis came in the morning bulletin from Col. Schwarzkopf. This related that there was "nothing that would in any way link Curtis with the actual kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby and the collection of the ransom money."

"This statement was made after an investigation of Curtis' whereabouts the night the baby was kidnaped and the night of April 2 when Dr. John F. Condon, 'Jafie,' pushed $50,000 through a hedge in a Bronx cemetery to the supposed kidnapers.

Col. Schwarzkopf mentioned that Dr. Condon had been "most cooperative with police" and had offered to come to Hopewell or go anywhere else with the investigators.

Curtis was jailed at Flemington yesterday following his confession that he had penetrated a hoax on the Lindberghs in claiming falsely that he was in direct contact with the kidnapers of the baby.

After the confession investigation was immediately begun as to Curtis' whereabouts on the night of March 1 when the baby was kidnaped and the night of April 2 when the $50,000 ransom was paid by Dr. John F. Condon. Schwarzkopf's statement today came as a result of this investigation.

After exonerating Curtis of implication in the actual kidnaping and collection of the ransom, Schwarzkopf said that Dr. Condon had been "most cooperative with police" and had offered to come to Hopewell or go anywhere else with the investigators.

Ordered to Rest

"A message from his daughter this morning," Schwarzkopf said, "indicates that Dr. Condon's physician has ordered that he rest for several days before his activities are resumed. As soon as Dr. Condon is rested we will continue taking him around."

Schwarzkopf's statement also made comment on the telegram from Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, in which the reverend declared that the Curtis activities declined to come to Hopewell, but said he would give all information to police going to Norfolk.

"Under these circumstances," said Schwarzkopf, "it will not be possible to confront Mr. Curtis with Dr. Peacock, which at this time we are very anxious to do. There is no legal way in which we can force Mr. Peacock's presence in either Hopewell or Flemington. The fact that Peacock requested the deposit of $25,000 in Norfolk is substantiated by Col. Lindbergh and others who were present when Peacock made the request."

The full statement as it applied to Curtis follows:

"On April 2, Mr. Curtis was in the company of Lieut. Richards and his actions are accounted for. There is nothing that would in any way link him with the actual kidnapers and the collection of the ransom money."

"When Mr. Curtis was first questioned, he manifested concern for the safety of his family and we request of Director of Public Safety, Col. Charles Borland, of Norfolk, Va., to protect the Curtis family. No reports have been received that any threats have been made against any member of his family."

"It is understood that Mr. Curtis has a brother, George, who, however, lives in or near Norfolk and nowhere in the vicinity of New York. At no time did Mr. Curtis see any of the actual ransom money, nor the ransom itself. In fact, it was the request of Col. Lindbergh for actual truth of his contacts with the kidnapers that was the basis, upon the desire, to have Mr. Curtis bring from his alleged kidnapers, a letter of communication bearing the signature known to be that of the kidnapers."

Curtis Faces Charge

It was the seventy-ninth day of repeating sorrow and multiplied horror at heart-beat house in the Southland hills; and the murderer of the Lindbergh baby remained unknown, untraced and free.

The constabulary of the state of New Jersey, charged with the responsibility of the hunt for the person or persons who kidnaped the baby the night of March 1, killed him immediately and buried his body in the brush-grown land of the hill country, found their hunt interrupted by the necessity of doing something about the story of Curtis.

Curtis, after ten weeks of promise as a negotiator, the return of a child alive, was in jail at Flemington. The charge was obstructing justice. Conviction provides a penalty of three years in jail, a $1,000 fine, or both.

The 47-year-old boatbuilder who blames financial worries for his attempt to foist his gigantic hoax upon the world waived preliminary hearing when he was called to answer the charge late yesterday at the Lincoln court.

The night of jail and iron bars seemed rancor and he spoke bitterly of a fellow Norfolk negotiator, the Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, and slightly of the third member of the Norfolk group, Rear Admiral Guy M. Burrage, retired.

New York—One and not the least of the many reforms which will be the ultimate outcome of the market collapse of the last two and one-half years will be the insistence on the part of the security buying public of complete, accurate and up to date information with regard to the assets and operations of the corporations the stocks and bonds of which are offered for general distribution.

No excuse will be accepted for the withholding of this information. Those concerned should arrange their affairs accordingly. This includes the investment bankers who sponsor the securities their clients are expected to purchase. It includes the New York Stock Exchange and other organized markets which allow trading in those securities and it includes the corporations themselves who must furnish regularly and at reasonable intervals financial statements which the men of ordinary intelligence can interpret for himself.

If the institutions and individuals concerned refuse to the public their undoubted rights in this matter they will be forced to comply by legislation, federal or state or both. A bond buyer has the right to know exactly on what property he has a lien. He must know whether it is real estate or securities in another corporation and if the latter the exact status of those securities. If any substitution is permitted under the adventure, the conditions under such substitutions must be clearly stated and when and if a substitution is made immediate notice must be given.

This involves certain changes in procedure on the part of organizers of holding companies. For detailed financial statements the model is the formula adopted by the railways under the guidance of the Interstate Commerce Commission and by the railroad holding companies under regulation of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Such a formula would of course have to be altered to meet the varying conditions under which industrial organizations operate but unless they are willing to furnish comparable data they should no longer be allowed to invite the partnership of the public in their profits and losses.

hoar of the publicity it would bring. This the clergyman, at Norfolk, denied, expressing doubt that Curtis would make such a statement.

Burrage was referred to by Curtis as "an old fogey." The retired commander has been exonerated by police of any knowledge that he was lending his name and aid to a hoax. He is the father of the son of his friend, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

The guard about the Flemington jail throughout the night was instructed to watch the prisoner closely, both as a precaution for his own safety from any outside violence that might threaten and because of fears that the boatbuilder might attempt suicide. Curtis, by his own confession, has stated that financial troubles leading to the bankruptcy of his boatbuilding business, and worry over the hoax he has perpetrated have weighed heavily on his mind.

Jafie returned home last night after a busy day looking over regues' gallery pictures. New Jersey police announced that questioning of Jafie had produced answers "adhering consistently to the fundamental facts related so far."

The Police Cash Demand

The Police intended to pursue further their inquiry into the request by Curtis, early in his "ransom negotiations," for $25,000 from Col. Lindbergh. The Rev. Mr. Dobson-Peacock at Norfolk said the request for the money was made, but that the money was to be deposited in the name of all three intermediaries.

There was an intimation from Norfolk police, who have been looking into the activities there of a negotiator, that Curtis' confession was far from complete, that he was holding back "something important." From other sources there were intimations that his detailed account of negotiations with the kidnapers—an account he gave the authorities a few hours before confessing it all was a lie—may in fact have held some elements of truth. These intimations were that some of the persons he named as the kidnapers may be actual persons, despite Curtis' subsequent disclaimer of the story.

From Mexico City came word that Harry Fleischer, a suspect in the kidnaping and a notorious Detroit gangster, was in Mexico and that his arrest would be accomplished soon. Some of his movements there have been traced, police said.

Eats Big Meal

Curtis' appetite was unaffected by his harrowing day. At the Flemington jail last night he ordered "dinner" for eating two large steaks and ate them.

On the list of prisoners at the jail he was number 13.

With the startling twist given the case by Curtis' confession, the primary hunt—the running down of the kidnaper-killer—has slowed down. A check of state police activities early today disclosed that the Curtis affair has taken the time of the principal police officials from the main search. First there were days lost in following "clues" based on the false invention of the ship-builder. Later there was the confession, throwing the man hunt out of gear.

The phraseology of a statement issued by police last night for the first time fixed the time the murder of the baby was done. It said "between 8 and 10 o'clock p. m., March 1."

The body was not found until May 12.

New York—(AP)—Inertia continued to rule the stock market today, with prices maintaining a fairly good undercurrent.

Tobacco and utilities, along with a few miscellaneous issues had a period of heaviness in the morning, but the list recovered substantially after midday. The market was so sluggish, however, that price movements were not regarded as of much significance.

In the tobacco, American Tobacco Co. "B," Liggett and Myers "B," and Lorillard post a point or two, and failed to recover appreciably in the afternoon. American Consolidated Gas, Pacific Gas and Electric, and Consolidated Gas got down a point or so, then recovered partially.

American Telephone, after losing a point, rallied to show a gain or like extent and Standard of N. J. developed notable firmness, setting up more than a point. U. S. Steel, Santa Fe and Johns Manville rallied nearly as much.

Charles M. Schwab's analysis of the stock situation before the American first and Steel institute, in which he pointed out that the five leading companies fell about $25,000,000 short of earning bond interest and other charges in the first quarter, was rather gloomy, but he pointed out that companies have substantial business on their books which await only the necessary financing. This led to the hope that once the credit expansion program of the reserve system takes effect, this basic industry will be one of the first to reflect a more normal functioning of credit machinery.

Indications that the reserve authorities may slow up their open market purchases of government securities for a time, while they concentrate on getting members banks to put the $250,000,000 of excess reserves to work which have already been piled up, were not regarded in banking quarters as indicating any fundamental change in the program.

The sag in the tobacco's presumable indicated that the April cigarette figures will show a substantial decline from last year. Selling of the utilities also probably reflected yesterday's electric power consumption figures, which were off about 13 per cent from last year. Oils, however, continued under the favorable influence of better control of production, and hopes of success in the international conferences looking to prevention of dumping.

SHIPPING ORDERS SHOW BIG DECLINE

Livestock Situation Reflects Scaled Down Prices in East

(Chicago—AP)—Marked decline in shipping orders for live stock filled in the local stockyards this week reflect scaled down operations in eastern packing plants in response to the receding wholesale meat prices.

Only three cars of hogs were shipped Wednesday and total of 6,700 for three days is the smallest in many years. A further slump of 50c to $1.00 in dressed pork prices retarded shipping orders to a minimum today.

Packers received 7,000 hogs direct, leaving more hogs available in the open market than a week ago and a year ago. Holders struggled against demands for 5-10c concessions. Best hogs were wanted at $3.45 to $3.50.

Several loads of Texas cattle on the local market constituted the Vanguard of a movement of southern grass cattle that will gradually broaden in scope until the western and northwestern native and western grass cattle arrive in volume sufficient to effect prices. As this class of offerings shows a lower dressing percentage on the killing sheets they will sell at substantially lower prices on corn fattened heavy cattle have already become scarce, and as more pasture-fed arrivals arrive, the pressure will widen.

The search for cattle with weight again led sellers to ask premium figures for weights above 1,350 lbs. Native steers bulked at $5.50 to $5.50 yesterday, while the first Texas offerings of the season of comparable weights, brought $4.75 to $4.90.

Less than 2,000 sheep and lambs were shipped out of the local yards during the first half of the current week, as compared with more than 10,000 during the corresponding period last week. During the last two days outside inquiry has all but vanished from the market and certainly has ceased to operate as a market factor. This has given local buyers the grip on the market which has enabled them to break prices sharply on all classes of lambs.

DELINQUENT TAX LIST $300,890, CLERK REPORTS

Current Assets of County Now Total More Than $717,000

Delinquent real estate taxes of $300,890.65 and tax certificates owned by the county to value of $154,564.06 made up almost two-thirds of Outagamie county's current assets of $717,247.83 on March 31, according to a financial report prepared by John E. Hantschel, county clerk, Cash on hand at the time the report was made totaled $252,215.82.

Part of the delinquent taxes, however, Mr. Hantschel pointed out, have been paid since the figures on which the report is based were compiled. Other current assets include: illegal taxes of $273.63; accounts receivable, $554.87; and poor claims receivable, $647.01. This brings the total current assets to $717,247.83. Total assets, which include $547,000 of a bonded debt to be collected in future years, were $1,254,247.82. The bonded item is offset by a similar item as a liability.

Total current liabilities at the time of the report were only $117,549.29 as against total current assets of $717,247.82. Liabilities include: surtaxes and income taxes due state, $508.24; income taxes due districts, $508.24; excess delinquent taxes due districts, $12,896.35; Black Creek-Bovina Grange district, $99.318.54; due Kaukauna school district, $402.25; income taxes paid in advance, $203.14; inheritance taxes due state, $187.29; tax redemptions unclaimed, $1,577.29; municipal court fines due state, $51.67; circuit court suit taxes due state, $40; county school tax, $500.

Long Beach, Calif.—This city has a $10,000-a-year job open and no one seems to want it despite the unemployment.

The job is that of superintendent of schools, until recently held by W. L. Stephens. A short time ago Stephens accepted another position. His school job was to have been taken over by Vierling Kersey, but Kersey, state superintendent of public instruction, changed his mind.

"It puts us in an embarrassing position," Dr. Henry K. Booth, of the Long Beach school board says, "because we have no other candidates for the job."

WAS IT SUICIDE?

Champaign, Ill.—Do robins commit suicide by hanging? It's hardly possible, but two small boys hurried into the office of William Strode coroner, and asked his aid in rescuing a robin that was hanging from a limb of a tree on West University avenue. Fireman Hageman and Murphy finally freed the bird, which it seems, had become entangled in a piece of string it was using to build its nest. The bird had a broken leg.

TRIP OVER THE ROCKIES TO THE SEA

ACCIDENTS INCREASE AS CAUSE OF DEATHS

Madison—(P)—Accidents moved from fourth to third place among the important causes of death in Wisconsin in 1931, taking a toll of 2,596 lives, an increase of 277 over the 1930 total, the state board of health announced today.

The heavy increase was attributed to the unparalleled hot weather of 1931 which brought death, directly and indirectly, to 388 persons, an increase of 238 over the 1930 heat deaths. Classification of heat deaths as accidents is followed in conformity with the international vital statistics code, the board said.

Reductions were effected in automobile deaths and in drownings, two of the leading menaces against which safety campaigns have been directed in Wisconsin for several years, the board said. There were 785 automobile accident victims last year and drownings, which had taken successive tolls of 240, 239 and 234 in the three preceding years, dropped to 219 in 1931. The automobile death toll was reduced by 18 over the previous year.

The construction of overheads and underpasses at dangerous railroad crossings has apparently yielded life, the board's report shows. Deaths resulting from collisions of autos with trains, which cost 34 lives in 1930, were reduced to 24 last year, a decrease of 50 per cent.

Deaths from accidental falls showed an alarming increase, totaling 533 to mark an increase of 51 over those of 1930, and lesser increases were recorded among deaths from accidental burns, configurations and accidental poisoning, the board said. Airplane deaths reached a state total of 12 in 1931, six less than in 1930, the board said.

CURTIS CLEARS UP REFERENCES TO TWO MEN IN CONFESSION

New York—(P)—References in the Lindbergh confession of John Hughes Curtis to two men not fully identified were cleared up today.

In explaining his claim he had been offered money for his "knowledge of the Lindbergh case or pictures of the baby," Curtis said: "Mr. Twin and Fox offered me money."

Although the identity of the "Mr. Twin" was not known immediately, the "Fox" reference was generally interpreted as referring to the Fox Film company. The Fox Film company is in no way involved and this correction is emphasized.

Today Eam Fox, a Norfolk (Va.) photographer, said he had acted for a news photograph syndicate in offering Curtis $2,500 for exclusive pictures of the Lindbergh baby, or for enabling him to photograph the baby before anyone else.

To which, he said, Curtis replied: "It is hard for me to say at this time what I can do."

P. E. Turin, manager of the advertising board of the Norfolk-Portsmouth Chamber of Commerce, said he had made no offer to Curtis, but that the shipbuilder had broached to him, as manager of the Norfolk-Portsmouth News bureau, suggestions of remuneration for information concerning his negotiations.

June 2, Mauston high school; June 3, Birchwood high school; June 4, Verona state graded school; June 7, Brown-co normal; June 8, Jefferson-co rural; June 11, Adams-co normal. J. T. Giles, supervisor of high schools, May 27, Red Granite.

DEFERRED TAXES MUST BE PAID BY JUNE 1

All Outagamie-co residents who deferred payment of half of their real estate taxes by filing of affidavits, must pay these deferred amounts before June 1 to avoid having them listed as delinquent, according to Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, county treasurer.

The delinquent tax list, which this year numbers over 6,000 as compared with 3,800 last year, already has been published and it will be necessary for those who have not yet paid their taxes to pay the advertising fee. After June 1, Miss Ziegenhagen pointed out that all unpaid taxes will be listed as delinquent and interest charges will be added to the unpaid amounts.

500 MURDERED IN GERMANY'S POLITICAL FEUD

Foes Use Bullets to Write
Republic's History in Vengeance Campaign

BY MILTON BRONNER

Berlin—Chicago and other American cities may have their bloody gang murders as bootleggers and racketeers kill each other off, but post-war Germany has experienced for 15 years a kind of political gang war which makes the record of the United States insignificant in comparison.

In Germany, where political battles have been fought with bullets as well as ballots ever since Kaiser Wilhelm was overthrown more than 10 years ago, the political feuds have ranged from the small fry to high public officials.

The recent attempt on the life of Dr. Hans Luther, head of the German Reichbank, has directed attention to the long list of crimes resulting from political feuds. Dr. Luther luckily escaped death; he would be killed by a bullet merely wounding him in the hand. The assassin was a well-known German economist who opposed Dr. Luther's iron fiscal decrees.

The political murders in Germany are not the work of isolated cranks. They are carefully planned crimes by various secret organizations. In some cases, the "vengeance courts" of the secret organizations first "try" and "convict" a man selected for assassination and then send a representative to kill him. Usually, the victim is a political enemy or some former member of their own organization who has been denounced as a "traitor."

The blot of Germany and the German courts is that in all the 15 years none of the murders committed has been punished by the death or even the life imprisonment of any of the assassins.

In many cases it has been reported no clue could be found to the killers. In many more cases, where men have been arrested for the crime, they have been given nominal sentences of from one to three years' imprisonment and usually have been freed long before their time was up.

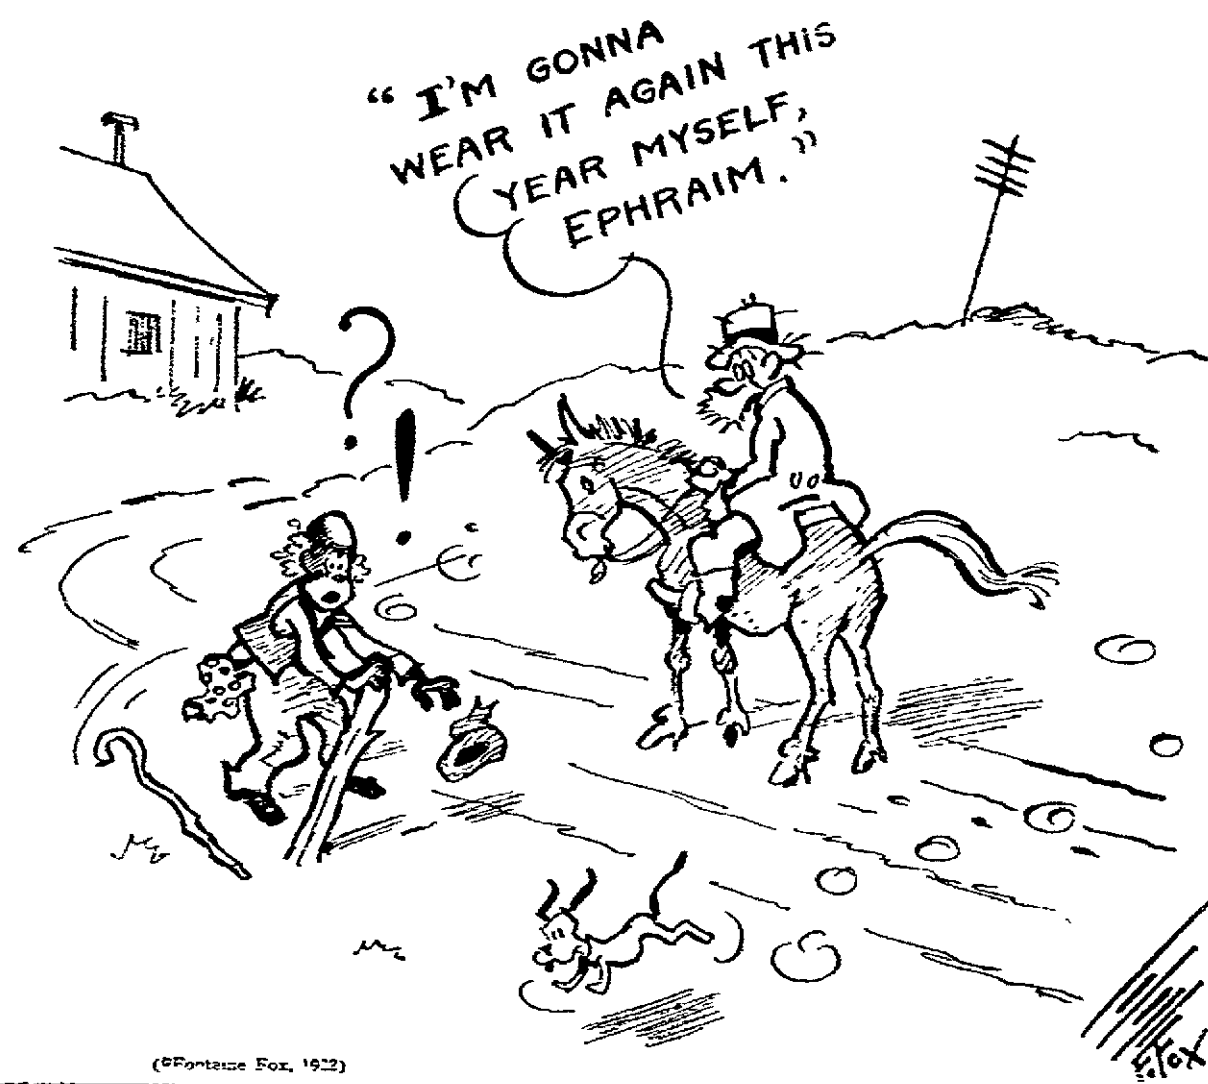

One of these assassins is at present an elected deputy to the Reichstag—a member of the Nazi party.

The political murders started just as soon as the revolution made a clean sweep of the monarchy and the petty rulers.

On Jan. 15 1919 Dr. Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg leaders of the Communists, were arrested in Berlin.

On Jan. 15 Liebknecht was shot and killed while trying to escape. Luxemburg was "lynched." Every body in Germany knows they were murdered. Nobody was ever arrested for the crime.

Kurt Eisner was the Communist president of the republic in Bavaria. On Feb. 21 1919, when he was on his way to the Landtag (the upper house of the Bavarian Parliament) he was shot and killed. The assassin was condemned to death, but this was quickly commuted to life imprisonment.

How strenuous this sentence was can be seen from the fact that he was allowed to go to his estate to superintend the work there. Later he was released and is today prominent in the politics of the extreme right.

The mass of Germans shrugged their shoulders over these killings because, after all, the victims were Communists. But the murderers of the Right soon sought higher game.

D. Karl Gaster's "Socialist League" in the Bavarian Landtag was in the black books of the secret organizations. He tried to probe into the secret places where the organizations had guns and ammunition hidden. On June 10 1921, as he was on his way home, he was shot to death. Nothing was ever done about it.

The Erzberger case is notorious. Matthias Erzberger was the leader of the Catholic Centre Party. During the World War he worked for peace and as secretary of state, conducted the armistice negotiations on Germany's behalf and signed its terms. In 1919 he became finance minister of the republic. The monarchists never forgave him for signing the armistice. He became a marked man.

On Jan. 26, 1920, as Erzberger was leaving the court house in Berlin where he was plaintiff in a libel action, he was shot twice. The man who did the deed got only 18 months' prison.

Erzberger recovered and, to complete his cure, went to a resort in the Black Forest. Here on Aug. 26, 1921, while out walking, he was set upon by two young ruffians, who shot him twice. As he lay on the ground fatally wounded, they pumped two more shots into him to make sure of the job.

Equally notorious is the political assassinations of another of Germany's leading statesmen—Walter Rathenau. Before the war he was one of the greatest industrialists in Germany. During the war he was called to high service by the Kaiser.

Rathenau had pointed out that the war promised to be a long one and it would be necessary to conserve all materials like copper, rubber and cotton for the army. Therefore, the Kaiser and his generals

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

BRIDE OF A TAXI DRIVER

A novel by a taxi driver about taxi drivers really ought to be worth reading. The taxi driver is a man who gets his own unique start on things, and he is generally packed with worldly wisdom—not made him controller of such supplies.

In 1922 the chauffeur made him master of foreign affairs. As such he came into conflict with the extremists of the Right because he advocated the policy of reconciliation with France.

On June 24, 1922, as he was riding in an auto from his villa in the Grunewald to the foreign office, a bomb was thrown at the car. The bomb exploded, and the taxi driver was thrown out of the car. He was killed by the explosion.

The taxi driver was killed by the explosion. The taxi driver was killed by the explosion. The taxi driver was killed by the explosion. The taxi driver was killed by the explosion.

always of a kind that we stay-at-homes easily acquire. So, when he sits him down to write a novel, we have a right to expect something interesting.

But "Fifteen and Five" which a taxi driver named Abraham Bernstein has written with New York taxi drivers as his principal characters, somehow fails to make the grade.

It begins nicely enough. We follow young Max Brenner (it I remember the name correctly) as he gets his job, we get a look at the drivers in their moments of relaxation and we find out what a driver thinks about his job. He looks as if he were a man who has been through a lot.

Then just as the story threatens to grow interesting the author turns into a moralist. A taxi driver's life is not a life of pleasure and ease, and it is not a life of adventure and excitement. It is a life of hard work and long hours. The author is right, but the story is not interesting.

STAGE FORMAL OPENING FOR NEW CLUBHOUSE

Fond du Lac Man Is Speaker at Clintonville Lion's Event

Special to Post-Crescent
Clintonville — William Hyde of Fond du Lac was the guest speaker at the formal opening of the Lion's club house on Long lake Tuesday evening. Mr. Hyde, who is editor of the Wisconsin Branch of the publication "Lion's International," talked on the subject "What and Why is Lionism?"

A dinner was served to about 65 persons, which included wives and friends of the members. Several piano solos were played by Miss Edna Mae Jones and guitar selections were contributed by a trio composed of George Look, W. Piel and O. G. Golden. Games, cards and dancing concluded the evening's entertainment.

Lawson Lurvey of Fond du Lac, district governor of Lion's clubs, who was scheduled to speak, was unable to be present.

Meetings of the club during the coming season will be held at the club house each Tuesday evening. Plans for another night party on June 6 are now underway. The remodeling has been done at the club house. This included the building of an 15 by 30 foot addition, improving and enlarging the kitchen, finishing the walls of the living room and reception room and installing new furniture.

First National Bank and Dairyman's State Bank were closed Tuesday to enable employees and officials to attend the annual convention of the Wisconsin Bankers' association at Waupaca. Clubs Counteract Evils Of Modern Day, Bewick Says

Forest Junction—Organizations to keep the minds and bodies of boys and girls wholesomely occupied are present day requisites to counteract the innumerable evils, according to T. L. Bewick, Madison, state leader of the 4-H movement, in addressing a rural audience in the town hall here Tuesday evening.

Citing statistics to show that the number of persons below 21 years of age who have been convicted of major crimes jumped from seven per cent in 1875 to 51 per cent in 1925, the speaker said that approximately 200 different kinds of boys' and girls' clubs had, of necessity, been organized in a 50-year period. Of these, 4-H clubs are among the most recent and have gained an unusually large following during the 20 years since their inception.

Through the speaker admitted that statistics seemed to imply that boys and girls of the world are worse today than those of a past generation, he also pointed out that those who are naturally inclined to go wrong can do so much more rapidly today than they could a generation or more ago.

Mr. Bewick, in speaking of the activities of 4-H clubs, illustrated his remarks with lantern slides on the National 4-H camp at Washington, D. C., and moving pictures of 4-H exhibits and other activities in various parts of the world. Boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 20 are eligible to enlist in the work. As an initial attempt at the movement in this area, 15 boys and girls have enrolled for calf club, sewing, and potato or corn projects.

Gen. Hacker, who became interested in 4-H work while attending the college of agriculture, Madison, from which he graduated last March, will be local leader of the movement. Supported by the community club in school district 4, town of Brillion, he had arranged for the meeting of the evening, which was attended by approximately half a hundred representatives from nearby school districts.

TWO CLOSE GAMES IN SOFTBALL LOOP

Cristys Beat Lutherans, 5-4; Bordens Defeat Men's Club, 5 to 3

(Special to Post-Crescent)
New London—Indoor baseball fans witnessed two close games on the local diamond Wednesday evening. In the Lutheran-Cristy game the latter won 5-4, with Hoffman stealing all honors. Hoffman held the hard hitting Men's club to one hit until the fifth inning when M. Senneit bounced one off of his delivery. Cristys got on to Much for three runs in the first inning, on Much's lone walk, a hit and an error. They again counted twice in the fifth on three hits and a fielder's choice. The Lutherans came back in the seventh when Hoffman walked Reiser and Lesch hit safely. An error coupled with two more hits gave the Lutherans their four runs. Up to the fourth inning, when Wolftrath drew a pass, not a Lutheran had reached first base. Edminister at third helped Hoffman out by knocking down some clouds which usually are hits.

In the second game Bordens won over the Catholic Men's club, 5 to 3. Bordens had their beginning in the fourth when they got on to Knapslein to sew up the game. Wild Bill Brown pitching for Bordens, had the ball under control and did not issue a pass. Some good fielding by the Catholics helped Knapslein out of holes. With the bases loaded Lathrop sent one sailing out of the field only to have Lance McFaul make a great snare the ball and hold it for the third out. Another ball which had been going for home runs all season was hit by Red Barlow and muffed up by Knapslein and Lowmick were batteries for the losers and Brown and Becker for the winners.

Friday night's play will be continued in this league with the Plywoods meeting Hamiltons. If the Plywoods win it will put them in first place with Cristys, each having won two games.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

by Ely Culbertson
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

DECEPTION IN BIDDING

A sound principle in Contract bidding is to bid enough to encourage your partner to continue with safety and yet not completely reveal every strong point and every unguarded feature of your hand to your opponents. Occasionally a Contract player observes every letter of the law and yet writes himself down a loser in the play. This is often because his bidding is always an opened book to his opponents, even though it is also crystal clear to his partner. This is not an argument for the coarse, bluff bids, which some people regard as psychic. Bold bidding and, at times, overbidding may be dictated by the necessities of defense.

Today's hand recounts how Miss Louise Morgan Sparrow, who plays at the Cavendish Club in New York, and her partner combined boldness with slight overbidding and thus prevented opponents from contracting for a game, but were doubled in a same contract, which they made.

1—South's hand contains 6 playing tricks. It is possible that 9 tricks are available to the North and South partnership. Eleven tricks appear impossible on the bidding.

2—Proceeding cautiously in view of his partner's two passes.

3—Again a bold bid, which had much to do with the success of the eventual contract.

4—East wishes to be assured of a heart lead.

5—South realizes that the no-trump contract is impossible.

6—West places the major diamond tenace in the South hand on the bidding, and thus reasons that he hold 2 to 3 tricks and that his partner's bid should count for enough to make the set of the spade fully as profitable as the defeat of the no-trump contract.

In the play, East opened the heart King, which was won by the Ace in Dummy. The heart was returned, and East won and led a club to "kill" this suit before the Doubler's trump stopper had been removed. North won the club trick with the

Baer Holds Invaders to Two Hits — Loewe Replaces Altmann

Special to Post-Crescent
Hilbert—Sunday was an interesting day for the baseball fans as the local team met Chilton here and played a snappy game in spite of the high wind which held the ball in the air. The local team defeated their opponents by a 6 to 3 score.

Baer, pitcher for the local club exhibited his throws and curves with little difficulty, only allowing two hits during the entire game. The catchings was done by Loewe due to the absence of Altmann. He collected a nice hit and scored a run. Three runs in the first, second, fourth sixth and eighth inning were scored by Hilbert, while their opponents scored a lone run in the fifth, and two in the eighth.

Meier for Hilbert, showed a battery energy collecting two doubles in five attempts. Meier and Buil of Chilton collected the two drives for Hilbert and scored with errors. Schmidtberger pitched a six hit game for Chilton but at critical times his support had failed him.

Next Sunday the local team will meet the Chilton club at the latter's diamond.

Mrs. Frank Altmann, 51, died at her home Monday noon, the result of a stroke which she suffered last Friday. Emma Christine Behnke was born on October 16, 1877 at Porter and the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Behnke. On December 31, 1899 she was married to Frank Altmann at Hilbert, and previous to the past year have resided on a farm in this locality. She is survived by her widower, three daughters, Mrs. A. A. Blauert, Way-side; Mrs. William Peterson, and Miss Eva Behnke, Milwaukee; two sons, Mildred and Frank at home; three grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Adolph Kasper of Hilbert, and Mrs. Edmund Dandor of Oshkosh; five brothers, Adolph and Herman Behnke of Oshkosh, Otto Behnke of Osh-

After cleansing the surface with warm water, apply emerald oil. To the affected part apply a piece of clean gauze soaked in the oil. One it put a layer of mutton tallow to hold the gauze in place, and cover with a bandage. Change the dressing two or three times a day. Wear the bandage continuously until the repair process is established and the broken surface is replaced by healthy skin. Emerald Oil is anti-septic and very soothing.

You can get Emerald Oil at all good drug stores, such as Schlitz Bros. Co., with a guarantee of relief or money back. Adv.

Chapter 17

THE DOCTOR SCENTS MYSTERY

GILL continued to look steadily at Jenny.

"Might be awkward, for instance, if that gentleman in the car outside was to be told that you'd got married when you hadn't," he said and Jenny saw for the first time that his eyes were very wise and kind. "The gentleman you met at the corner of Eye Street last night—he's outside the hotel now. Just drawn up, he has."

Jenny got to her feet. She wondered suddenly if she were dreaming everything—this quaint conversation with Gill and the clean little shop and the street outside shown in the copper urn. She looked out of the window shyly, although she would only see what she had waited for—Garth Aveney at the wheel of his car, come to take her to picnic with him in the country.

"He is very early," she said half to herself. "It isn't nearly ten."

She moved to the door and Gill stood aside. Gill—oh yes, of course Gill had very decently asked her if she would object to his telling people that it was she who was Mrs. Townsend.

"You may tell people it was I," she said—"after today. Today is going to be mine."

Gill grinned. He, too, was staring out at the car under the portico. He opened the door for Jenny to pass out—and still he stared.

As she stepped out on to the pavement she saw that Gill had seen—that Garth Aveney, with a sudden shrug and a jerk, had switched on his engine again and was driving away.

"Praps the gentleman has mistook the time," suggested Mrs. Bigger. She had joined them in the doorway. "How would it be if Mr. Gill was to holler after him, dearie, and let him know you're here?"

Jenny shook her head and moved away. She felt cold in the blazing sunshine and most utterly forlorn. Gill and Mrs. Bigger might watch the slowly retreating car until it turned the corner, but she could not. Gill was talking at her side.

"No sense in letting anyone think you're married when you aren't," he commented in his abrupt, bossy way. "I shan't say nothing, one way or the other—takes a lot of questions to get anything out of me. But there's no sense in your letting Miss Revell—"

"I'm very glad to let Miss Revell say anything she likes," said Jenny as he paused. "I'm most awfully glad she can make use of me. You needn't consider me, Gill. Thank you, though, all the same."

Gill grinned. Aveney's car had disappeared; the street was empty. Jenny crossed back to the hotel and went inside. The lounge was cool and held very few people. An intricate gilt clock on the mantelpiece showed ten minutes to ten. She sat quietly down by the window.

It was, after all, reasonable to suppose that Garth had found him self alone of his appointment and had only gone for a few minutes and would return. Reasonable to sit and wait while the gilt hands slightly moved to ten o'clock.

Nevertheless, she knew quite positively that he would not come. He had not mistaken the time. He had not been at a loss as to her whereabouts. It was simply that he had arranged to take her motor and had got as far as her door and then had decided that he couldn't, honestly, face the prospect of a whole day in her company. Later on, no doubt, he would send some formal excuse.

Why should he bother about George's cousin—when it was George with whom he had fallen in love?

"It says here—about that man Townsend—"

"Suddenly remarked an old lady in a corner, refolding her paper—that he had only just got married when he had that accident."

"Yes," nodded the slightly younger lady near her. "I remember him. He had dreadful dyspepsia; said, I remember his wife, too, poor little soul."

Jenny glanced at the clock. It was past ten—nearly a quarter past. Remote in her thought, she had not heard the chime. She got up and left the lounge and went up to her room again. She must go to the apartment.

It seemed silly to take off the cool frock and hat, but she felt that it would help her to forget what today had promised her; and the smart dark dress that George had chosen for her would help her to do what she could—anything she could—to pay George back for all her wonderful kindness. As she adjusted the dress she could see in the mirror the pile of last evening's papers. The Record was still on the top.

Possibly Garth Aveney had read his news last night, most probably he had read his papers this morning. And they had all told him the same thing—that George, whom he loved, had married Eddie Townsend. Jenny, shutting her eyes for a moment, her fingers clenched upon her little, fluted, frills, could hear again the thrill in his voice as George sent him away. "Good-night, Miss Loyalty... You're being magnificent. He ought to thank his stars for you."

No wonder that he had felt he couldn't endure George's little cousin today. No wonder at all. Nothing to cry about.....

Jenny bathed her eyes, finished dressing and went down to the street. She told herself that it was all done with now, all over and forgotten—that moment when she had stood ignored upon the pavement and watched him fling aside his just-lit cigarette, pull his hat down over his eyes, reach for the gear and—escape.

And she told herself that she had been nothing but a fool. She had thought herself, if only for a day, a golden girl, and all the time she was just a puppet, a doll: a silly little figure moving grotesquely in the shadows of Mrs. Bigger's copper urn.

Drawn up before the building in which was George's flat Jenny saw an ambulance. Evidently Eddie had been brought home.

She halted in her step, then went steadily forward. Since George's hesitating—"There's bad news about Ed," Jenny had given only a passing thought to Eddie Townsend. She remembered now, remorsefully, that she had not even asked wherein the bad news lay. Perhaps he was permanently injured—a cripple? She broke into a run.....

There were a couple of idlers near the ambulance, but the main hall was empty. Someone was in the office, though: someone whose voice was raised in the exasperation Gill sometimes provoked.

"I tell you, I was here yesterday—I asked to see Mrs. Townsend or Miss Revell; I didn't know which was which—you told me yourself the number of their apartment. It's sheer silly waste of time pretending you've never seen me before."

Silence from Gill.

Miss Revell herself informed me that Mrs. Townsend was at some hotel or other. It's no use your asking me to believe you don't know which one it is. All I want you to do is to phone that hotel and tell her that Mr. Townsend insisted on going straight up to their apartment.... Well?"

"Don't know anything about anything—"

Jenny marched into the office. Gill was looking at wooden as a ship's figurehead. The man who faced him turned and scrutinized Jenny instead. He was the doctor who had rendered first aid to Eddie on that horrible pavement.

"Mrs. Townsend. I understand," he exclaimed.

"You don't understand it from me," put in Gill.

The doctor's quick glance went from Gill to Jenny. His eyes were intensely inquisitive, she thought, and his voice was too familiar.

"Your cousin told me your marriage wasn't secret, Mrs. Townsend, but there seems to be a lot of mystery made about it down here. I must have been kept hanging about here for nearly ten minutes. I'm beginning to wonder—"

"Is your patient upstairs?" Jenny asked.

The doctor flushed. Jenny had spoken in a tone that she had not used for a very long time; not since the days when she lived in her grandfather's house and wore faded gingham and hunted for eggs in the overgrown garden—and was, all the same, Miss Georgian Revell to whom nobody might be impertinent, even.

Will Jenny or the doctor win? She is challenged by Doctor Matching, himself, tomorrow.

Golden Gloves Champion To Show On Next Amateur Fight Card

JOHNNY PHAGEN MATCHED WITH MARTY KRAMER

Art West, Appleton, Gets Another Shot at Milwaukee Conqueror

THE CARD
Johnny Phagen, Chicago vs. Marty Kramer, Sheboygan.
Ebel, Manitowoc vs. John Mochel, Chicago.
Art West, Appleton, vs. Billy Miller, Milwaukee.
Frank Rasmussen, Racine vs. Phil Pernice, Chicago.
Zep Taurig, Manitowoc vs. Tony Pernice, Chicago.
Fred Chynoweth, Manitowoc vs. George Seelow, Milwaukee.

SIX of the best amateur bouts that could be arranged have been carded for the last program to be presented by Ony Johnson post at Armory G this season. The show will be held Thursday night, May 26. Although it is possible to hold amateur bouts throughout the summer months the veterans probably will give up the idea because facilities here are not good enough to pass fight commission inspection.

The approaching card will show a team of Chicago boxers, a couple from Milwaukee, two from Manitowoc and one from Appleton and Racine.

Gloves Champ Shows

The windup will bring together Johnny Phagen, Chicago Negro, and Marty Kramer of Sheboygan. Kramer will be remembered as the youngster who gave Joey Cieslak a neat beating here a couple weeks ago but who lost in the third round when he tried. Phagen is a golden gloves champion in his class.

In the semi-windup Luke Ebel, Manitowoc swatsmith, who looks better every time he steps into the ring will show against John Mochel, Milwaukee. Little is known about Mochel but the folks all know and Ebel's practice of slandering away with both gloves.

Art West, Appleton, has been re-matched with Billy Miller of Milwaukee in another of the bouts. West and Miller met a couple weeks ago in Milwaukee, the down state boy getting a K. O. in the second round. West had held his opponent even in the first round but got careless in the second and took two blows on the button for his troubles.

Rasmussen vs. Pernice
Frank Rasmussen, Racine and Appleton, is matched with Phil Pernice of Chicago. Rasmussen has performed here many times and given a good account of himself. Pernice also has performed in the local ring. Zep Taurig of Racine is given a shot at Tony Pernice, brother of Phil, and the bout should be a top notcher. Pernice is clever but Zep is too.

Still another bout will give Fred Chynoweth, Manitowoc, a chance to redeem himself of the first round loss. He took from Art West last night. Chynoweth draws George Seelow of Milwaukee, a flashy little battler who will trade leather with anyone.

The Chicago team is being brought here by Jabber Jung who used to live at Menasha and who could handle his "dukes" very well. Jabber now is a Chicago referee and trains a flock of amateurs.

YANKEE CUP TEAM STILL A PUZZLE

Doubles Squads Set, Singles Entries Have Committee Worried

New York (AP)—With time growing short and the opposition fast becoming stiffer, this country's Davis cup selection committee still is in quandary as to the best available singles combination.

The tennis fathers at least still are letting the boys make a three-way fight of it as they prepare for the important tie against Australia next week end at Philadelphia. Ellsworth Vines, Wilmer Allison and Frank N. Shields again have been nominated for singles duty, with Allison and John Van Ryn to carry on in doubles.

By their brilliant form against both Mexico and Canada Van Ryn and Allison have excited the doubting tennis fathers. But it has become increasingly difficult to choose between the singles aspirants. Vines has yet displayed the form that rocketed him to the national title last year, and only Allison has played consistently well. Shields further complicated matters the other day by beating Vines in an exhibition at Kansas City.

WIDE OPEN FIGHT FOR BIG 10 TENNIS TITLE

Evansville, Ill.—(AP)—A wide open fight for the Big Ten tennis championships began at Northwestern today with every university of the conference represented.

Scott Rexinger of Chicago, holder of the singles title three years in succession, was out of the picture, and at least four stars of the conference were conceded a big chance to win the individual crown. They were Carl Denson, Ohio state, runner-up in 1931; Charles Brittain, Minnesota; Edward Leick, Illinois, who hasn't been defeated in conference play this year, and Nelson Dodge, Northwestern.

Ohio State, with Denson as the keyman, was favored to win the team championship.

First round matches were on today's schedule in both the singles and doubles with the finals listed for Saturday.

See Two New Records When Big Four Track Teams Meet Here

Twenty Grand Will Again Seek Honors

Lexington, Ky.—(AP)—The thrilling stretch battles of last year between Twenty Grand, Equiptoise and Mate are again in prospect with the announcement Twenty Grand leaves today for the east to re-enter training.

Mrs. Payne Whitney's Kentucky derby winner of 1931 has not raced this year. He was withdrawn from training and sent to Greentree farm near here to recover from an old injury. Today he is being shipped to Belmont Park, apparently fully recovered.

Equiptoise, which rivaled Twenty Grand's turf mastery until the C. V. Whitney colt went lame on the eve of the Twenty Grand, winner of last year's Preakness and which took up the battle with Twenty Grand when Equiptoise left also is racing, but has not regained his last year's form.

MOOSE, GUARDSMEN AND COATED PAPER WIN BALL GAMES

Wally Klein Has Things His Own Way as Soldiers Bump Wires

Favorites won games last night in the city's various softball leagues.

The Moose eked out a win over the Eagles in the Fraternal league when they pounded out four runs in the eighth inning. The team scored two runs in the first inning, three in the second, one each in the fourth, fifth, seventh, and then capped the game with four runs in the eighth.

The Eagles had their biggest innings in the fourth, sixth and seventh when eight runs were pushed over the rubber. The others came in the first and third. Fearful and A. Kribbe worked for the Eagles and H. Horn and E. Peotter for the Moose.

Wally Klein of Co. D, had things his own way against the Appleton Wires and the soldiers won their National league game, 7 and 2. Klein and Bauer worked for the Guards and Demand and DeYoung for the Wires.

In the other game last night the Coated Paper company won from the Outagamie-Kloehns in the American league. The score was 7 and 2. The box score follows:

Bill Petrolle Likened To Old Time Fighters

BY FRANCIS J. POWERS Copyright 1932

CHICAGO (CPA)—Nate Lewis, the match suiter for the Chicago stadium, has been watching fighters for more than 30 years. Combining the recesses of his memory, the belt creaks of the loop rates Billy Petrolle, the Fargo Express, who fights here Friday night.

as one of the greatest fighters to pass under his eyes. Holding one of his mighty salons between midnight and the morning in the lobby of a hotel, Lewis declared:

"I have seen Joe Gans, Kid Lavigne and Frankie Yanez and I find something of each of them in Petrolle. He has Lavigne's fighting spirit, it and devastating attack; the ring generalship of Gans and the toughness and courage of Yanez.

"Never since the good old days when those three were active in the ring has Petrolle's equal in all around fighting ability been seen. He's a throwback to the good old days when fighters fought, if Petrolle only were a heavyweight—but why mention that?"

"I like the way Petrolle goes about his business. When training you do not find him surrounded by a crowd of hangers on. He walks into his dressing room, sorts out the stuff he is going to use, bangs his own hands and dunks into the ring. When he is finished he takes a shower and goes to his hotel. No fuss and furbles about Billy. He's just a fighter and a great one."

Chicago has not seen Petrolle in more than 15 months. When starting his sensational comeback he met and defeated Tony Canzoneri in the grandstand since then he has been going at top speed and his victory over Battalino in New York a few weeks ago was one of the most thrilling fights ever seen in Madison Square Garden.

Battalino never has given Chicago anything out of a good fight and his victory over Earl Mastro here established him as a favorite with mid-western ring followers. Battalino's followers believe Bat will be able to make a better showing against Petrolle here than he did in New York.

Tracy Nichols here last two rounds of the fight that was over a twelve round bout; and that in a ten man-bout he will be able to do at top speed without losing his strength.

VERSTEGEN TO AGAIN PLAY 2ND FOR COLLEGIANS

Club Invades Green Bay Sunday; Sox Have Won Two Straight

COBBY Verstegen, Little Chute youngster, will be back at second base for the Appleton baseball club of the Fox River Valley when the Collegians take the field against Green Bay Sunday afternoon at the Bay. That was the announcement of Leo Murphy, manager of the team, today.

Verstegen, a performer with Kimberly and Kaukauna a few seasons back, was at second for Appleton against Wisconsin Rapids in the league opener. He showed very well but exhibited some weird base running and appeared excited. When Steve Karben showed up here and said he was a second baseman, Manager Murphy decided to take him on. Karben's work last Sunday left a lot to be desired and he has gone his way.

Boss Murphy believes Verstegen will come through if given a lot of work and if some older head keeps after him. If any rate he'll be tried for a couple more Sundays.

Whether there will be any other changes in the lineup Sunday is a question. Sonny Tornow's weakness with the stick has the fans guessing and Bowers needs more experience in the sun field or may be shifted to some garden where he'll work better. The sun field in the Appleton park is the worst in the league and if Bowers stays at the post he'll have to dig up some black glasses or learn how to miss the sun and catch the ball.

Boys Are Strong
Green Bay has won two straight games this season and just now looks like the club to beat to win the Valley pennant. The Sox beat Kimberly in the first game and humbled Wisconsin Rapids last week.

Lefty Petcka is the big shot with the Bays, his hurling being little short of sensational. Not only has the team a new hurler but a new manager, Ben Rosenberg, and a handful of other new faces. Eddie Glick again is back stopping, there are new faces in the infield and new war clubs in the garden.

The Bays have gone in heavy for a successful baseball season and have arranged to have music before the game and a flock of extra documents to the fans. The Bay crowd last week was termed a packed house and with Appleton toting along a few fans Sunday's game should be another sellout. Lefty Petcka has beaten Appleton several times as a member of the Clintonville team and the Collegians would enjoy handing him his first Valley defeat.

ORANGE NETTERS IN STATE TOURNAMENT PLAY

Three Appleton high school tennis players have been entered by Coach Kenneth Laird in the state high school tennis tournament which opens tomorrow at Neenah.

They are Bob Shannon and Frank Deary who will compete for doubles honors and Bill Cahill seeking honors in singles. The three have been winning matches regularly in valley competition and are the best bets to show in state play.

Recently the high school team went to Green Bay and won from the East sides 7 and 9. Results of the matches follow:

B. Shannon won over Fred Kattanz, 5-3, 6-1. Dean defeated E. J. Jansen, 6-2, 6-4; A. Remley beat Dan Bessel, 6-0, 6-1; B. Merrifield won over J. Williams, 6-1, 6-2, and H. Lucke beat Joe Hofford, 6-1, 6-2, in singles matches. In the doubles, Shannon and Dean won from Manger and Kattanz, 7-5, 7-6, 6-3. Remley and Merrifield beat Twells and Bessel, 8-5, 6-2 in the other doubles match.

Chaff'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

LAWRENCE college Saturday will play host to Big Four track and field teams and the conference starts the second round of visits to the various schools. But what a change the years have brought in Viking track hopes.

Coach Arthur C. Denney still is here but all he has this spring are the memories of 1928 when the first meet was held on Whiting field. That afternoon Coach Denney saw Doug Holve step out and set records in the 100 yard dash, 220 and low hurdles that haven't been beaten. He saw Howie Ploce broad jump almost 22 feet, and he saw his Vikings start a string of wins that extended for three straight years.

Saturday Denney will send his squad out with a prayer and a hope and not much of either for the Vikings just aren't showing the trackmen that came along in other years.

But one won't be able to say that Appleton boys aren't doing their best to carry on for the honors the 1928-29 teams walked off with. Most of the point winners on the Viking squad Saturday will be Appleton youths. Bud Marston in the hurdles and Bobbie Roemer in the middle distances and Bill Foote in the pole vault and high jump and John Reeve in the distance and Lawrence Oosterhaus in the quarter and Harlow Roate and Bill Nemechek in the javelin.

All of the boys have been point winners for the Blue and White and they'll pick up a few more Saturday. They've got a great old record to live up to—those set by the Hydes and Ray Menning—and you can depend on it they'll be in there battling every inch of the way.

Why, oh why, do softball teams persist in setting compound monickers that make up more than a full line of type, that can't be used in head lines, and that in their present state are abbreviated into next to nothing or meaningless jumbles.

Most of the teams are reasonable but those in the American softball league and getting worse and worse and leaving us with a headache.

Yesterday it was announced that the Tuttle Press company team had combined with the Kluge Grocers. And can you imagine anything worse. Tuttle Press-Kluge Grocers is a whole line of type in itself; it doesn't fit in a head line although the abbreviation T-K's isn't so bad but doesn't convey any meaning.

There are a couple other clubs in the same loop with monickers that look like a dictionary. Outagamie-Mills-O. R. Kleehns is another weird combination for all sane purposes, as is Chair Factory-Interlake Paper.

Bring back, oh time in thy flight, the common names of Cardinals, Red Sox, White Sox, Brewers and a few others that fit in headlines and that seem like team designations.

College education teaches quick thinking says a headline. Huh, never heard of a college grad being able to think fast enough to talk himself out of a speeding charge. Even when pinched by some alleged dumb cop.

Barney Oldfield is going to bring back to America the world automobile speed crown held for the last few years by Englishmen in general and Sir Malcolm Campbell in particular.

The old veteran has designed a car a model of which now is under way with tests at Detroit. If the tests are successful he will start construction at Harry Miller's Los Angeles racing car plant soon. The car is to be cigar shaped, and will be powered by three banks of eight cylinder engines operating on a single crankshaft. It will be geared for 360 miles an hour.

Barney, now 54 and who will be 55 when he takes the car over Daytona beach in February, next, will give the machine a try out in November. It will cost $50,000 and Barney, who laughs that he's too old and points out Campbell is past 48, says his effort is a straight business proposition, patriotic perhaps, but certainly not a "comeback" effort.

ALL SCHOOLS HAVE CHANCE TO WIN TITLE

High Jump and Low Hurdle Marks Bettered in Duals Tourneys

BIG FOUR conference track and field teams will meet here Saturday afternoon at George A. Whiting field in a meet that any can win, even Lawrence with defeats in three dual meets.

Times and distances hung up during the past few weeks show the various schools to be outstanding in certain events and just fair in others. With the result that statisticians have picked out a meet as one likely to be won by any school and probably not decided until the last event has been reported.

Started in 1933
The meet marks the start of the tour around the conference fields the second time in league history. The rotating schedule was started in 1933 with Lawrence winning the championship at Appleton. The following year the meet went to Beloit and again the Vikings came home champions. In 1935, Waukesha played host to the schools and Lawrence repeated for the third straight time. Last year Carroll won the title at Ripon.

Indications are that at least two conference records will be broken or tied. The 100 yard high hurdle record of 19.1 seconds set by Lomas of Carroll in a dual with Lawrence. The high jump mark of 4 feet 10 inches has been broken by Bill Foote of Lawrence and Amenoff of Beloit and stands a good chance to be officially broken Saturday.

Dual meets in the last few weeks show each school with good material in each of the events. Honors in the states will be sought by Nash and Watt of Beloit, Hilsforth, Carroll, and Schaefer, Ripon, with Lawrence having little chance to cop.

In the hurdles, Porter of Beloit will pick at least one first, and will be pressed by Werra and Halloway of Carroll, Barbour of Ripon and Roy Marston and Vanderbloemen of Lawrence. Porter's times are the best.

The quarter mile will see Foll, Ripon, and defending the time he set for a year record last year. While his time this year has not been as good he has found the competition easier. Downing Beloit, Oosterhaus, Lawrence, and Clarkson, Carroll will be the strongest competitors.

John Reeve of Lawrence is picked to show well in the half mile along with Bobbie Roemer of Lawrence, if the corner can get himself into condition. Reeve was hit for a time and has had trouble getting back his stride. Downing, Beloit, and Schoemer, Beloit, will cause trouble.

Two Seek Record
The high jump record bids to fall under the assault of Amenoff, Beloit, and Foote, Lawrence, each of whom has hit 5 feet 11 inches. Fisher of Ripon and Jordan of Carroll are the other eager jumpers.

Bill Foote of Lawrence can cop pole vault honors if he has a good day. He has cleared 11 feet 4 inches on occasion. Porter of Beloit and Hilska of Ripon will be contenders.

The two mile run looks like a set-up for Ripon with Jennings and Sonnenberg both turning in good times. Davies of Carroll may cause trouble but Lawrence and Beloit will trail.

Halgarth of Carroll holds a big edge over conference rivals in the mile. Roate of Lawrence has been coming in for second places. Nemechek, Lawrence, also may get a point or three for the Vikings.

Discus and shot put are two more events that Ripon should win easily. Hilska's efforts in the two have been outstanding and the Crimson can rely on Helm, holder of the conference discus record, for a few more points.

"WORTHLESS BOOK" MAY BRING WEALTH TO WENDEL "HEIRS"

Six Claimants Believe Document Will Prove Their Kinship

Los Angeles — A German book, which once seemed worthless, may now be worth millions to its owners. Years ago Johann Heinrich Frederick Wendel, a cabinetmaker, lay dying on his bed in Hampton, Ill. He reached under his pillow and handed a dilapidated book to his son, Fred Wendel.

"Save this, my son," he said. "It may some day mean great riches to you. You are related to the New York Wendels."

Now six residents of this city, including his widow and four children, hope to find that the dilapidated book is an "open sesame" to a great fortune. They expect to find it a key to a portion of the $125,000,000 fortune left by the late Ella Wendel, eccentric New York spinster, who died recently leaving her vast estate to friends and charities.

The six claimants to this vast fortune are: Anna Wendel, widow of the late Fred Wendel, Mrs. Helen Hanna, Mrs. Lorene Johnson, Carol Wendel, Fred Wendel and Mrs. Enele Wendel, widow of J. P. Wendel, whom she says was the great uncle of Ella Wendel.

When the will of Ella Wendel is finally probated in New York, these six persons will appear with their counsel, former Judge Ben Lindsey and Edward Hazelton, to claim a portion of the estate.

Don't get the idea that this claim is the only one for the estate. Reports from New York disclose new claimants every day, and the number has already passed the 2000 mark. They are represented by more than 500 attorneys, and, although many of the claims have been proven false, it may take years to solve the legal tangle.

How the "Wanderer" of Johann Wendel, which may prove to be so valuable, links the six Angelenos to this vast fortune was explained by Judge Lindsey.

"This fortune was started by John Gottlieb Wendel, a Danish immigrant, who married John Jacob Astor's daughter, Elizabeth," he declares. "He had three children, two of whom died. The third, John Daniel Wendel, was the father of eight children, who died one by one, gradually concentrating the fortune into the hands of Ella Wendel."

"When John Wendel came to this country he left behind a brother, Jurgen Heinrich Wendel, who developed into a 'man of mystery.' When Prussia conquered Denmark, he became involved in some kind of trouble and was imprisoned. He escaped but feared to return to Denmark and was officially declared dead in 1850."

"However, in 1845 a 'Wanderer' was issued to Johann Heinrich Wendel in the kingdom of Hanover, late a part of the German empire. This man was born in Hanover and in the ancient records there, I believe, is the birth certificate which shows that Jurgen Wendel was his father. In 1848 Johann Wendel came to America and married. His son, Fred Wendel, came to Los Angeles 15 years ago. He died in 1929."

TWO RADIO BANDS TO PLAY AT CINDERELLA

Two famous radio bands will appear at Cinderella's ballroom within the next week. Art Kassel and his radio Kassel's in the Air, who broadcast from the Bismarck Hotel, Chicago, will play at Cinderella next Sunday, and Dan Russo and his Orpheus, direct from the Beach View Gardens, Chicago, will play for the closing dance of the season next Wednesday, May 25. Waverly beach pavilion will open Saturday, May 28.

Your Birthday

WHAT TOMORROW MEANS TO YOU
BY MARY BLAKE
"TAURUS"

If May 20th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9:20 a. m., from 3:20 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11:20 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. and from 7:30 p. m. to 9 p. m. A despondent atmosphere will prevail on May 20th, and it will be a time of spiritual uncertainty and unfounded mental worry. No unforeseen events are anticipated, and any set plans should be carried out without hindrance or setback. Unlucky for speculators.

The child born on this May 20th will be a bit on the slow side, but will be well able to keep up to the average in most of its school work. It will show a natural bent for some line of work, and should be encouraged and given special training for whatever talent is indicated. It will have an appreciative nature, and will be willing to work hard for the fulfillment of its own ambitions.

Born on May 20th you have an extravagant, a reckless and an adventurous nature, and you believe in making merry during the days of plenty. It may be true that there is no doing without some rousing, but you seldom regret your bargains. When you have drunk your wine, you make yourself content with Adam's ale. It is difficult for your family or other associates to keep pace with your sudden vagaries, and although you may mean no harm to them, they are always worried about the harm you will bring upon yourself.

If you be a man, you will do many spectacular things, and make many brainy moves, but you will never ride on the top of the waves for long at any one time. You are always staging a come-back, and each time are full of enthusiasm. "Brain storms," and concentrated effort. You are too much the born lover to entirely escape the microbe of illicit love affairs. Your personality is

HERO OF ALASKAN PLAGUE FIGHTS FOR LIFE IN HOT VALLEY

Saved Lives by Serum at Cost of Health — New Hermit of Desert Road

Beatty, Nev. — The hero of North America's coldest trails is fighting for health and strength in the west's hottest climate.

He is Dr. L. E. Benson, born in Wisconsin and educated in Cincinnati, O. Out along the desolate road that leads across the burning waste of Death Valley to Las Vegas, Dr. Benson is seeking to rebuild his lungs which were frozen during the exploit that won him a resolution of honor from the Alaskan legislature.

In 1923 a fierce epidemic of small-pox swept through the Eskimo colonies of northern Alaska. There was no medical help and meager supplies. If allowed to go unchecked the epidemic threatened to wipe out hundreds of natives and perhaps to feed the centers of white population.

With a guide to help him Dr. Benson traveled over 1,600 miles of snow-choked trails and vaccinated nearly 2,000 Eskimos and whites. The epidemic was checked.

At one time he was lost for three days in a blizzard. They had no tent and sought shelter with their dogs in snow caves that had to be changed frequently to avoid being buried.

After the storm the temperature dropped abruptly to 70 below zero. The little expedition pushed on, 500 miles north of Nome. Nearly exhausted, Dr. Benson collapsed by and not find it wanting, you would come out a more understanding and more spiritual being.

the side of the trail. He was unable to keep his mouth closed and took three or four gasps deep into his lungs.

"The air burned as though I had inhaled a flame," he says of the experience. He knew that the sensitive coating of his lungs had been bitten by the cold.

But he kept on with his work and in the end was voted awards by the towns of Candle, Deering and Buckman City. He was hailed as a hero but he knew that years of patient struggle for his health lay ahead.

At last he reached Death Valley with its miles of chalk white sand and bleached out salt beds. Under the blazing sun and in the dry air he built a lodge where he is making his home.

It was Dr. Benson who blazed the famous trail through the White Pass into the Yukon district in
